ERA vote loses

Springfield, Ill. (UPI) — Despite personal lobbying by Jimmy Carter and his daughter-in-law, the Illinois Senate fell seven votes short Thursday of being the only state this year to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment.

Senate President Cecil Pardee, sponsor of the proposal, called for a vote after a telephone call from the President-elect and a visit by Carter's daughter-in-law.

"Let me be perfectly candid," Pardee said, "and say to you that I was certainly motivated by the interest expressed from the village in Georgia called Plains and from a man named Jimmy Carter."

Holiday letup given

New Haven, Conn. (AP) — The three-quarters of a million persons in New Haven County don't need to worry about being evicted or having their wages attached during the holiday season.

Sheriff Henry F. Healey Jr. has ordered his deputies not to serve eviction or wage garnishment notices during the holiday season — which he says is Dec. 10 to Jan. 2.

Healey began the custom when he took office four years ago. He said he has received only one complaint about the practice, and the offended lawyer agreed to wait after the reason was explained.

New Haven County includes 27 of Connecticut's 169 cities and towns and has a population of 764,300.

Print was plant

Ogden, Utah (UPI) — Melvin Dummar said Thursday that someone planted his thumbprint on the "Mormon Will" to frame him and maintain control of the Howard Hughes' empire.

Dummar appealed to whoever delivered the will to the Mormon Church headquarters in Salt Lake City last spring to "come forward and tell the circumstances surrounding it."

The unemployed service station worker also said he was having trouble finding a job because people think he is rich.

Energy concern lauded

Washington (UPI) — Saying many of their own efforts have failed, President Ford's top energy experts Thursday endorsed Jimmy Carter's intent to reorganize the federal energy bureaucracy, but said he should not neglect urgent problems in the meantime.

Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson and Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb also urged Congress to quickly give the White House new emergency powers to deal with foreign oil embargoes or sharp oil cartel price hikes.

Music to their ears

Chicago (AP) — Some had practiced at home the night before to music over the radio. Others had never sung the complicated cratie.

But more than 2,500 amateurs crowded Orchestra Hall for a do-it-yourself version of Handel's "Messiah."

"We were very good," said Gemma Spina, a legal secretary.

"My voice is only so-so," admitted a South Side auto mechanic.

"But with all these voices around me, even I sound like a pro."

The Christmas season sing-along was the idea of Al Booth, a local real estate dealer.

Movement planned

(c) New York Times
Bangkok, Thailand — Vietnam's Premier Pham Van Dong told the fourth Vietnam party congress in Hanoi Thursday that large-scale redistribution of the nation's population would begin early next year, including movement of workers from the southern portions of the country to the North.

Swine flu program halted

Atlanta (AP) — The nationwide swine flu immunization program was halted Thursday for at least two weeks because of concern over a possible connection to a disease which causes temporary paralysis, federal health officials said.

The suspension followed reports of at least 94 cases of a temporary paralytic conditions called the Guillain-Barre syndrome, which is also known as French polio. Four of the 94 persons died, but health officials stressed there was no evidence of a direct link between the vaccines and the deaths.

Of the reported cases, 51 had received swine flu vaccinations one to three weeks before symptoms of the syndrome were noted, 31 had not been vaccinated, and the vaccination status of the other 12 was not known, said Dr. William Foege, assistant administrator of the national Center for Disease Control.

In Washington, Dr. Theodore Cooper, the nation's top health official, told a news conference that he would not declare the swine flu program dead yet, but he said it would be difficult to persuade people who have not been vaccinated to get flu shots even if the 94 cases prove to be coincidental.

Foege said an estimated 50 million persons have received the swine flu vaccine so far — far below the original target figure for this date.

Cooper, assistant secretary of health for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, said that for those who already have received the shots, information on hand now indicates that there is no statistical risk for the neurological condition if the shot was given at least three weeks ago.

Health officials emphasized that most people stricken with the paralytic disease recover completely. It usually starts with weakness in the legs, then in the hands and arms, and spreads to the neck and face.

Cooper, in disclosing that four of the 94 reported

Guillain-Barre victims had died, said all four had been given the swine flu vaccine.

But he added that there was no proof of a connection between the vaccine and the deaths.

"Guillain-Barre disease can kill if it affects the nerves controlling the breathing apparatus," Cooper said.

Three of the four victims died of respiratory failures, and the other died of complications from a blood clot, he said.

Cooper said he briefed President Ford on the decision to suspend the program about two hours before it was announced publicly. "He concurred," Cooper said.

While the CDC's Foege said the swine flu vaccination program would be stopped for at least two weeks, Cooper said it would be halted for at least one month.

On the basis of information acquired so far, Cooper said, it would appear that people between the ages of 24 and 64 years who were inoculated are 3 to 4½ times more likely to come down with the illness than persons in the same age group who did not get shots.

Vaccinated people under the age of 24 and over the age of 65 do not appear to be at any greater risk than those who did not get shots, he said. While saying that the information is limited from only 14 states, he said it appeared that fewer than two persons per one million who received swine flu shots might come down with the syndrome.

Reports of the temporary paralytic disease surfaced early this week.

Information from four states — New Jersey, Alabama, Minnesota and Colorado — along with reports from doctors and hospitals across the country led to the temporary suspension, Foege said.

He said the inoculation program would resume "if we have evidence of transmission of the disease (swine flu) because the risks of flu are greater than the risks of this syndrome."

OPEC splits, oil up 5-10%

Doha, Qatar (UPI) — The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) Thursday agreed to raise world oil prices by a maximum of 10% Jan. 1, 1977.

Venezuelan Oil Minister Valentin Hernandez Acosta said the 13 members of OPEC had agreed that Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates will impose an increase of 5% while the other 11 countries will boost prices by 10%.

Hernandez Acosta said all 13 ministers had agreed to this "temporary resolution" of OPEC's pricing dispute and that the agreement will extend only from Jan. 1 to June 1, 1977.

It appears likely the 11 countries with the greater increase may seek to increase their prices by another 5% next July, conference sources said.

He said the discussions about oil prices are now finished. Asked if this means the breakup of OPEC, which has held ranks since 1960, the Venezuelan said, "We are going to see what will happen."

He pointed out that at an OPEC meeting in Ecuador in 1974, Saudi Arabia refused to go along with an agreement reached by the other members on taxes and royalties, but later reneged and applied the same rates as everyone else on a retroactive basis.

Earlier Thursday, Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani of Saudi Arabia refused to go along with a majority in raising world oil prices by 15%.

The compromise decision came after Yamani's dramatic departure from the talks after the conference appeared to be coalescing around Iran's demand for a 15% increase.

After Yamani left the conference, Sheikh Mana Saeed Al-Otaiba of the United Arab Emirates said he would support Saudi Arabia in calling for a freeze if the other ministers insisted on going to 15.

Yamani returned late Thursday and immediately conferred with Otaiba, and then with the other ministers.

The decision also came after a statement by U.S. President-Elect Jimmy Carter which referred to direct contacts with Saudi Arabia and indirect contacts with other OPEC members and said an increase would be considerably less than 10%.

Hernandez Acosta said there was no talk of whether Saudi Arabia would diminish its production to keep approximately the same share of the market it now has.

United Way board approves '77 allocations

By Linda Olig
Star Staff Writer

The 25 United Way agencies got an early Christmas present Thursday.

United Way agency allocations totalling $1,624,945 for 1977 were approved Thursday by the Lincoln-Lancaster United Way board. That figure was recommended by the agency relations committee last summer.

As of Thursday afternoon, the 1977 United Way campaign had brought in $1,631,905, well over the flat $1.6 million goal. United Way workers will continue to receive pledges and donations through the end of the year.

"A successful campaign like the one just completed makes it so much easier to finalize allocations," said Glenn Smith, agency relations committee chairman.

In past years, the United Way campaign has fallen short of its goal, resulting in a mid-December cutback in anticipated agency allocations.

The allocations were approved as recommended in June, despite the Homestead Girl Scout Council's last-minute appeal last month for an increased 1977 allocation. The recommended allocation was $18,000; the Girl Scouts wanted an additional $21,000.

The appeal was referred to United Way's agency relations committee where it was rejected, Smith announced Thursday. "Funds are available to maintain operation of the agency with (the council's cash) reserve," he said.

The council is being "penalized, in a sense," Smith said.

The denial of the scouts' appeal revived the United Way board's controversy over agency assets.

Four years ago, United Way budgeters discovered a Girl Scout fund set aside to purchase a campsite; the council was told to use up the cash and its allocation was slashed.

"I can't help from feeling we're making a serious mistake requiring and encouraging (the Girl Scouts) to dissipate their assets" while other agencies are allowed to retain real estate, said Paul Quinlan, United Way board member.

The United Way policy is that no agency be allowed to maintain a cash reserve, said former board president Don Morris.

It was agreed that an ad hoc committee be appointed to study all agency assets.

In other action, Al Dittmer, Volunteer Bureau cabinet chairman, announced that the Volunteer Bureau is searching for a means of maintaining for three months in late 1977 a full-time clerical assistant who has been provided by CETA.

The board also accepted the planning division's comprehensive social planning report as a framework for future decisions on needed agencies and programs to meet community needs.

In other business, officers and board members for the coming year were nominated.

Nominees for 1977 are Al Sward, president; Dave Patrick, vice president; Lorraine Pallesen, secretary, and Walter Stephenson, treasurer.

Board members nominated for their second two-year terms were Natalie Clark, Glenn Bonacker, Lee Liggett, Dave Patrick, Darrel Fosdick, Anne Campbell and Merl Oosting.

Cliff Rotert, Kathryn Druliner, Garel Moore.

Earl Curry and Sharon Furr were nominated to their first two-year terms.

Nebraska Wesleyan University student Lorie Acklie was nominated to serve a one-year term.

Nominating committee members were Bonacker, chairman; Mrs. Clark, Marge Bredow, Dr. John McGreer III, Richard Clarence and Ron Smith.

The new officers and board members will be elected at the United Way annual meeting Jan. 20.

Following are the 1976 and 1977 agency allocations:

Agency	1976	1977
Red Cross	303,960	306,500

Nixon must pay wiretap damages

(c) New York Times

Washington — A United States District Court judge ruled here Thursday that former President Richard M. Nixon and two members of his administration had deprived Morton Halperin and his family of their constitutional rights by having their home telephone tapped for 21 months.

In a strongly worded opinion, Judge John Lewis Smith Jr. said the surveillance of Halperin, a former White House aide and his family, "constituted an invasion of plaintiffs' privacy and freedom of expression. For these reasons . . . the court finds the wiretap per se unreasonable under the Fourth Amendment and unjustified by any possible exception."

He ordered Nixon, John N. Mitchell, the former U.S. attorney general, and H. R. Haldeman, Nixon's White House chief of staff, to pay damages to Halperin and his family. The amount of damages will be set by the judge after further information is supplied by those involved in the case.

It is the first time, several legal experts said, a former President has been liable in court for official actions taken while in office. It is also apparently the first time a federal judge ordered that money damages be paid for an invasion of privacy in a wiretapping case.

Judge Smith found that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Gen. Alexander M. Haig, although involved in arranging the wiretap, had an "inactive role and the lack of oversight authority" so he cleared them of any legal liability.

The judge also cleared Robert Mardian, a former assistant attorney general; William Sullivan, former assistant director of the FBI; John Ehrlichman, who was chief of the White House Domestic Council; the FBI agents who managed the tap; and the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co.

Halperin, reached at an airport near Washington, said he was "somewhat overwhelmed. I am pleased that my rights have been vindicated by the court."

John Shattuck, leader of a team of American Civil Liberties Union lawyers who pressed Halperin's case, said he plans to ask Judge Smith to set damages according to the federal wiretap law.

Smith specifically ruled that Nixon's actions were not a violation of this law. The wiretap law provides that a victim of an illegal wiretap must be paid $100 per day for each day his conversations were intruded upon.

Since the judge found in favor of Halperin, his wife and their three children, against three separate defendants, damages based upon the wiretap formula could amount to $600,000 to $1 million.

Neither Nixon, Mitchell, Haldeman nor their lawyers could be reached for comment. An appeal of Smith's ruling seems likely, several legal experts said.

Carter, right, chats with Young, Brzezinski and Shultz at news conference.

Carter Cabinet ranks grow

Plains, Ga. (UPI) — Jimmy Carter announced Thursday he picked Rep. Andrew Young — first black on his Cabinet-rank team — as U.N. ambassador, Charles Shultz as his chief economic adviser and Soviet expert Zbigniew Brzezinski as national security director.

Brzezinski, a brainy Kremlinologist with academic credentials, rivaling those of Henry Kissinger, immediately challenged Nixon-Ford foreign policy standards by saying the nature of U.S.-Soviet detente will be changed from what it has been "in the last eight years."

In making Thursday's announcements, Carter denied he has been harassed by competing interest groups in the matter of Cabinet selections.

He insisted, for example, that former Defense Secretary James Schlesinger and former Air Force Secretary Harold Brown remain in the running for Cabinet posts despite reported opposition to both.

"I can tell you truthfully the reports about disharmonies and pressures (in Cabinet choices) have been grossly exaggerated," Carter said.

In any case, Wednesday's selections raised the number of Carter's top-level administrative selections to seven and, despite his disavowals, moved him past the relatively easy choices toward those that appear to involve some controversy. The new additions introduced to the public at a televised news conference were:

—Young, 44, the first black elected to Congress from the Deep South in modern times and the first black to accept Cabinet-rank appointment from Carter after others refused. Carter called him "the perfect choice" because of his knowledge of foreign affairs and the "esteem" he commands among world leaders.

Young, a proponent of black majority rule in Southern Africa, said he decided to leave Congress and accept the appointment even though "I've never had so many people cussing me and crying and sending me messages not to take this job."

—Schultz, 52, President Lyndon Johnson's budget director, an old hand in Washington Democratic political circles and an economics professor who favors tight-fisted austerity in government spending when necessary. Carter said "he will be at my right hand" in economic policy-making as chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers.

Schultz declined to make specific predictions yet on how he would propose to stimulate the faltering economy, but said that "getting the economy back on a course of solid, sustained recovery" ranks second only to keeping the peace as a priority.

—Brzezinski, 48, a naturalized U.S. citizen born in Poland, as director of the National Security Council, a post of vast influence, that once made Kissinger more powerful than the secretary of state. Brzezinski, Carter's chief foreign policy adviser during the campaign, is a Harvard Ph.D. in Soviet affairs who now holds a professorship at Columbia University.

He advocates a pragmatic, hard-line approach to dealings with the Soviet Union and, as an author and holder of many academic laurels, is considered Kissinger's peer in heavyweight academic circles. He is also the second naturalized citizen and refugee from Nazism to join Carter's Cabinet, following Treasury Secretary designate W. Michael Blumenthal.

Brzezinski, perhaps conscious that his intended post has been used in the past to overshadow the secretary of state, said he sees his job as that of coordinating policy-making between the President, the secretary of state and other key Cabinet officers.

But he served immediate notice he has controversial views of his own on major issues when asked his opinion of the detente policy molded by Kissinger under Presidents Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford. He implied it has been a one-way street favoring the Soviets.

"I do not believe that, in any respect, the policy of detente in the future ought to be the same as it was in the past eight years," he said.

He said he agreed good U.S.-Soviet relations are vital to peace, but added, "for detente, to be enduring . . . it must be a detente which is reciprocal and becomes progressively more comprehensive."

Carter showed some exasperation over reports he has come under heavy, competing pressures from organized labor, women's groups and blacks to pick the candidates they favor for such posts as defense and labor secretaries, and to reject candidates they oppose.

AFL-CIO Secretary George Meany reportedly insists that Carter reappoint former Ford Labor Secretary John Dunlop to that post, while women's groups and blacks oppose Dunlop. Consideration of Schlesinger and Brown for the defense secretary job has also reportedly generated opposing views.

Carter insisted news reports about the alleged dissension have been "exaggerated" and "distorted" and "sometimes downright inaccurate."

"I've been under no pressure at any time to pick a particular person," he said. He described the advice he is getting from the various groups as "moderate."

Gilmore attempts suicide again

Salt Lake City (UPI) — Convicted killer Gary Gilmore tried again Thursday to commit suicide by taking a "lethal" drug overdose, but doctors expected him to live until he can be shot by a firing squad next month.

The condemned man, depressed by a judge's rejection of his pleas for quick execution, swallowed what doctors called "a lethal dose of a barbiturate," exactly one month after his first attempt to take his own life.

A hospital spokesman said Gilmore could have died if he had not been found and treated quickly.

He was found unconscious in his death row cell at Utah State Prison and rushed to the University of Utah Medical Center in Salt Lake City where doctors said he would survive unless other medical complications occurred. Gilmore developed "aspiration pneumonia caused by breathing the contents of his stomach into his lungs," announced hospital spokesman John Keahey. He said the pneumonia — which Gilmore also developed after his Nov. 16 suicide attempt — was being treated with penicillin and steroids.

"The medical team expects him to be unconscious 24 to 36 hours," said Keahey. "His condition is critical, but stable, and he is responding well to treatment."

"Blood screening indicates he took what can normally be considered a lethal dose of a barbiturate, such as phenobarbital. His level of the drug is at the midpoint of what can be considered the lethal range."

The hospital spokesman said Gilmore's 25-day hunger strike made him more susceptible to the pneumonia or other complications. "He is quite a bit weaker than last time," he said.

The 36-year-old admitted slayer's suicide attempt came exactly one month after he and fiancée Nicole Barrett took overdoses of sleeping pills in an unsuccessful suicide pact. Mrs. Barrett was committed to a mental hospital after she recovered.

A prison sergeant and medical aide found Gilmore unconscious on his bunk during sick call in the maximum security unit Thursday morning. When they couldn't wake him, they called a doctor who gave the convict emergency treatment.

He was moved to the prison infirmary, then taken 25 miles to the hospital.

Deputy Warden Leon Hatch said the prison had no idea how Gilmore obtained the drugs.

A hospital spokesman said blood tests were being made to determine the drug taken by Gilmore, but a preliminary analysis indicated it was "a barbiturate, possibly phenobarbital."

"He may be unconscious several hours to a day longer than he was before," Keahey said. Gilmore regained consciousness 12 hours after he overdosed on sleeping pills Nov. 16.

He said Gilmore was breathing on his own, but was being assisted by a respirator, and that he responded to pain stimuli — indicating he was not in a deep coma.

Gilmore was moved into a maximum security cell on death row Wednesday after returning from Provo, where District Judge J. Robert Bullock rejected his demands for quick execution or release from his death sentence.

Bullock set the execution for Jan. 17.

"He was very upset because the prison had immediately put him in isolation and started to punish him for some of his — quote — sins and past deeds."

Jobs-for-clemency program falters

Washington (AP) — About three-fourths of the war evaders who signed up for President Ford's jobs-for-clemency program have dropped out or been kicked out for lack of performance.

And what remains of the program would probably be wiped out if President-elect Carter decides to include deserters in his announced plans to pardon draft dodgers.

"There would be no point in those now working in jobs to stay on," Byron Pepitone, director of Selective Service, which oversees the work program, told a reporter Thursday.

Of the 106,000 eligible for Ford's clemency program, only 21,723 applied for it. Of these, only 8,461 enrolled in the jobs program and 1,653 completed the assigned work in up to two years in public-service jobs. Selective Service said 5,381 dropped out, about 1,100 others are still at work, and about 300 others are awaiting placement.

The only penalty for almost all who drop out of the work program is not to gain clemency or a pardon. Only draft dodgers who have not been tried may be punished further by the government.

So far, 7,629 men have benefited from Ford's clemency program. In addition to the 1,653 who have completed the jobs program, pardons were issued by Ford to 1,510 draft violators and 4,466 deserters as recommended by his clemency board.

Carter originally said he would issue a blanket pardon only for draft violators and would consider deserters on a case-by-case basis.

Of the identified draft violators, 12,000 would be affected by Carter's original plan. The bulk of the war evaders eligible for Ford's program were 93,000 deserters.

Plane carrying cattle crashes

Miami (UPI) — A cargo jet carrying 37 Canadian milk cows to the Dominican Republic ran off Miami International Airport's longest runway Thursday and crashed into a canal, injuring three crewmen and trapping one of them for six hours in the wreckage.

Flight engineer Stanley Grogan, 60, Miami, was pinned in the Convair 880 jet after it failed to gain altitude and rolled beyond the end of the runway.

Grogan was hospitalized in serious condition. Tips of three of his fingers were severed and his foot fractured. Physicians said he may have other injuries.

Pilot Wayne Dickman, 50, Miami, crawled unassisted from the wreckage and appeared initially to be unhurt. He was taken to Jackson Memorial Hospital for observation.

First Officer Luis Corrons, 23, Miami, was pulled from the wreckage by rescuers immediately after the crash. He sustained lacerations and was listed in fair condition.

Dr. Robert Campbell, a veterinarian, said none of the cows survived. They were being shipped to improve Dominican Republic dairy herds.

Some rescuers speculated the cargo shifted, making the big airliner tail-heavy on takeoff, but the cause of the crash was not officially determined.

Campbell said the cows were loaded five to seven to a pen in six 9 x 12-foot pens aboard the converted airliner. "They couldn't have made the plane tail heavy," he said, adding that the cargo was well below the plane's 25-ton capacity.

Rescue crews left one of the jet's four engines running to consume fuel and ease the danger of fire while they worked to free the trapped Grogan, pinned to his seat by the collapsed instrument panel which fell across his knees.

France said tightening nuclear data exchange

(c) New York Times
Paris — The French government, in what was seen here as a gesture to President-elect Jimmy Carter, announced Thursday a further tightening of its controls over the export of sensitive nuclear technology.

A statement, issued Thursday after a meeting of the government's Nuclear Export Council said that until further notice France would sign no more contracts to deliver nuclear fuel reprocessing plants, which have the potential to produce plutonium for bombs. "Faithful to its peaceful and humanitarian traditions, France does not intend to contribute to the terrible threat of nuclear arms proliferation," said the council, a body chaired by President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing.

It was established last September in a significant policy shift signalling a more determined attitude to cooperate with other major exporters to check the spread of nuclear weapons.

France had been strongly criticized, principally by the United States and Canada, for signing a contract last spring with Pakistan for a nuclear reprocessing plant, and although that arrangement has not been cancelled by Thursday's decision, the chances that France will actually provide the facility were viewed here as much reduced.

Presidential spokesman Jean-Pierre Lecat said, "Signed contracts remain signed," but another high official added privately, "France would now be only too happy if the Pakistanis decide to call the deal off."

During the American presidential campaign, Carter urged increased international efforts to check proliferation, and only recently he told a press conference in Plains, Georgia:

"My hope is that the sale of plutonium processing plants by both France and West Germany might be abrogated . . . I think there's a good chance this might be successful."

He added that attempts would be pursued "through normal diplomatic channels and normal diplomatic persuasion."

West Germany has come under fire for a massive contract signed with Brazil to build an entire nuclear industry from the ground up. Among the facilities Germany would supply over an extended period would be sensitive reprocessing and enrichment plants.

France was to deliver a reprocessing plant to South Korea, but after intense American pressure the Seoul government announced a year ago that the contract had been postponed.

Thursday's decision in Paris appears to make the German government more vulnerable now than France to strictures about ignoring the dangers of proliferation.

At a moment of increasing international commercial competition and greater threats to jobs because of the faltering economic recovery, both European nations face tough internal political problems in the renouncing of nuclear contracts that mean profits and employment for local companies.

The French action does not affect the export of nuclear power plants, which France, as well as Germany, has sold widely throughout the world.

France has tended to slough off the censure of now-aligned countries last summer for making agreements on arms delivery and nuclear power stations with South Africa.

Thursday's statement said that France would continue to export nuclear power stations and promised all potential purchasers that France would guarantee their fuel supplies.

The point is to make it unnecessary for potential purchasers to obtain their own enrichment or reprocessing plants, from which nuclear weapons can be made.

The communique also said the French government was prepared to discuss with other nuclear exporters, as well as with the purchaser nations, most of which now are in the third world, ways to "avoid stimulating nuclear arms proliferation through commercial competition."

Two years ago, in what now develops was the first indication of changing French policy, France became one of the founder members of the so-called Nuclear Suppliers Club — a group of countries that has met periodically in London to try to establish new rules to arrest proliferation.

The club went into operation some nine months after India fired off a nuclear explosion though technology gained from a Canadian heavy water research reactor acquired two decades earlier.

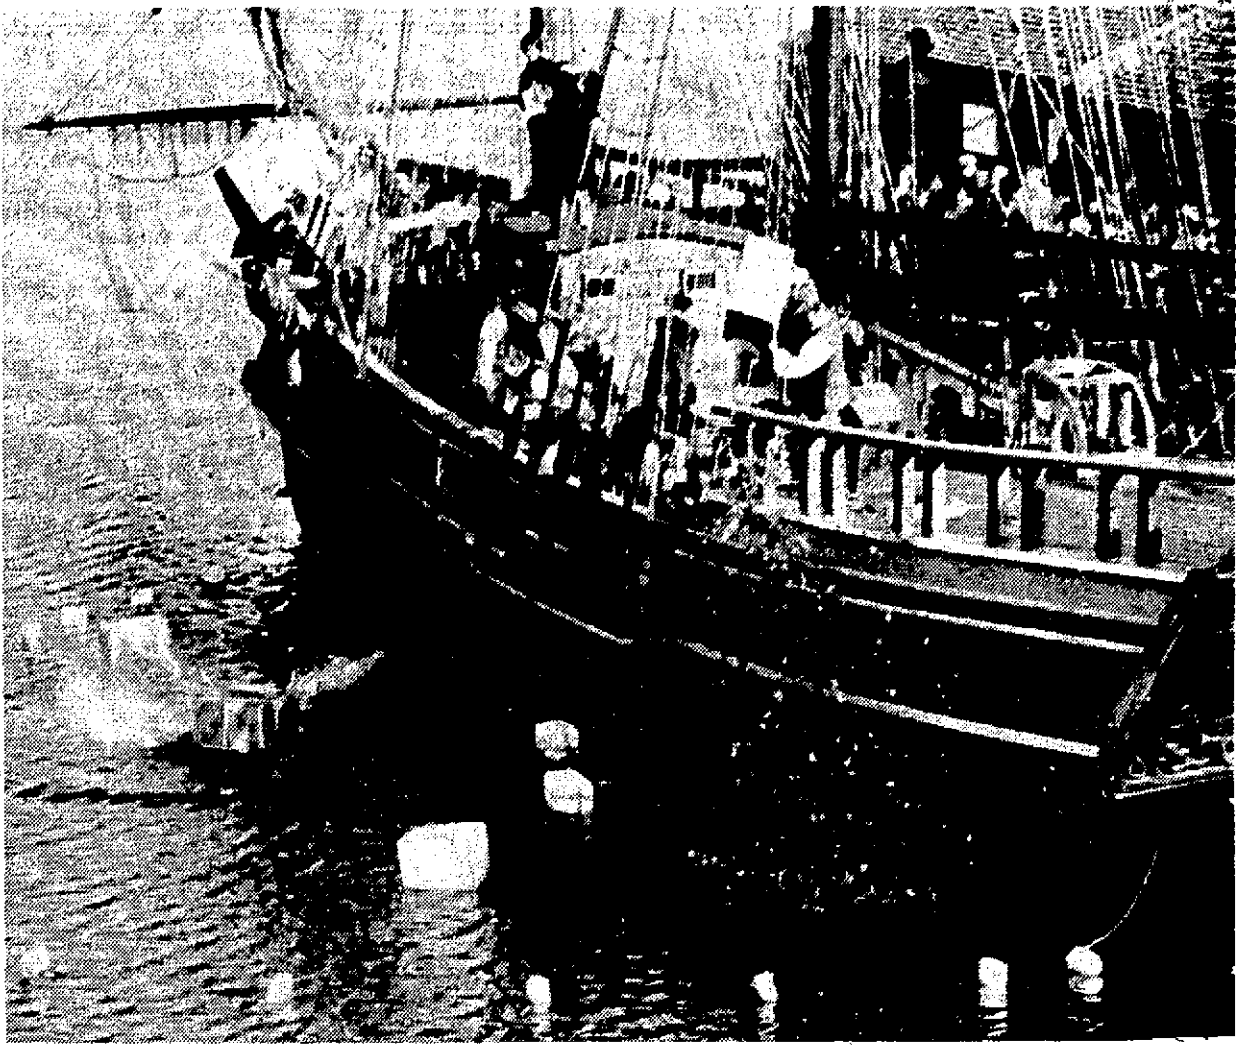

It began, as one high French official said Thursday in discussing the evolution of nuclear policies, "the escalation of mistrust."

The suppliers club, which has been boycotted only by China among nuclear technology nations, includes: the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, France, Canada, West Germany, Japan, Sweden, Belgium, Holland, Italy, East Germany and most recently Czechoslovakia and Poland. Switzerland has sent observers to the meetings.

Tea party is revived

On the 203rd anniversary of the Boston Tea Party, celebrated Thursday, "militiamen" in colonial costume restaged the famous protest on the deck of the Beaver II, a replica of the original tea party ship. They were actually dumping ordinary tree leaves and recoverable boxes so as not to pollute the harbor.

Patty doesn't feel sorry

Patricia Hearst told CBS in an interview aired Thursday night that she thought her fellows in the Symbionese Liberation Army got "exactly what they deserved" when they died in a shootout with Los Angeles police. "I don't feel sorry for them at all," she said in the exclusive interview shown on the Walter Cronkite CBS Evening News.

Rusk to head board

Dean Rusk, secretary of state under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, was named to head the board of advisers of the $10 million Center for the Study of the American Experience at the University of Southern California. The center was established with the aid of Walter Annenberg, a publisher and former ambassador to Britain, to study the great social, political, economic and cultural issues of American life.

Callaway resigns post

Howard "Bo" Callaway, former campaign manager for President Ford, resigned as chief executive officer of the Atlanta-based Interfinancial Inc., to devote more attention to a Colorado ski resort in which he has a large investment.

Best dressed men picked

American Actors George Hamilton and Robert Redford joined Prince Charles of Britain, French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing and Fiat President Gianni Agnelli on a new list of the world's 10 best dressed men.

Reagan did all he could

Ronald Reagan says he did all he could to help elect President Ford, and that campaign workers who say otherwise are just looking for a "scapegoat." "I actually had a schedule (campaigning for Ford) that was just about as full as my own schedule during the primaries when I was campaigning for myself," Reagan said.

French robbers steal valued historic sword

Paris (UPI) — Three robbers climbed scaffolding left by workers and slipped through an unbarred window of the Louvre Thursday and made off with the priceless diamond-studded coronation sword of King Charles X.

Police said three armed and masked men climbed steel tube scaffolds set up by workers cleaning the walls of the museum's main courtyard, opened the full length windows between statues of great French artists on the museum's second floor and clubbed and tied up two guards who tried to stop them.

A third guard escaped and ran to give the alarm. The robbers sprinted to the Apollo Gallery where the French crown jewels are exhibited and smashed the showcase containing the diamond-studded coronation sword, stirrups and saddle of King Charles X, younger brother of Louis XVI, who ruled 150 years ago.

With the alarm bells ringing, the thieves fled with only the jeweled sword.

A museum spokeswoman said the sword had such historical value that "one cannot set any value on it." She said the piece was so well known it could not be sold, but that the robbers could remove the diamonds and sell them individually.

Police arrived a few moments later and sealed off the Apollo Gallery, just above the hall where the Winged Victory of Samothrace is on display.

Police questioned guards and experts while the museum opened for business as usual. Crowds of schoolchildren trickled in as if nothing had happened.

The sword was made for King Charles X for his coronation in 1824 by French artists Frederic Bapst. The stones that adorn it are all part of the crown jewels collection begun by King Francois I.

They were pawned several times during the spendthrift reign of Louis XVI, stolen during the French Revolution of 1789 and finally sold in 1887 with the exceptions of the pieces exhibited at the Louvre.

Charles X was the younger brother of the ill-fated Louis XVI, who was guillotined in the revolution, and of Louis XVIII, who ruled France after Napoleon's fall. Charles himself ruled for six years before being driven into exile in another revolution in 1830.

It was the first successful Louvre robbery this year. The most spectacular Louvre caper occurred in 1911 when an Italian workman managed to smuggle Leonardo Da Vinci's Mona Lisa out of the museum under his shirt. It was recovered two years later.

Canadian plane ditches

Victoria, Canada (UPI) — A Canadian Air West Ltd. amphibious plane ditched in the chill waters of the Strait of Juan De Fuca Thursday, and all 16 persons aboard were rescued within 40 minutes.

The Canadian Coast Guard at Victoria said the Twin Otter craft made a forced landing about four miles south of Victoria shortly after 11 a.m. and survivors in life jackets were spotted minutes later.

One of two U.S. Coast Guard helicopters sent from Port Angeles, Wash., across the strait from Victoria, picked up the passengers and crew members but was damaged when it set down on the water surface amid the wreckage of the plane.

A spokesman at the Port Angeles Coast Guard Station said the survivors would be transferred to another helicopter or one of the surface rescue vessels at the scene and transport them to land, probably to Victoria.

Air West Ltd. is a Canadian carrier operating within British Columbia.

The plane was on a flight from Vancouver, B.C., on the mainland to Victoria on Vancouver Island when it was forced to ditch just short of its destination. The problem that caused the forced landing was not known immediately.

Canada oil tax increase seen

Ottawa (AP) — The export tax on oil shipped to the United States will increase by 35 cents a barrel effective Jan. 1, the National Energy Board says. The rate will go to $4.80 a barrel for light and medium crude and condensate, $3.75 for Lloydminster blend heavy oil and $4.20 for other designated heavy oils. Energy minister Alastair Gillespie said the adjustment in the rate reflects the decline in the value of the Canadian dollar compared with U.S. funds.

Last chance for Alaska

New York — It has been 25 years since I visited Alaska, but one never forgets . . .

It is July, the height of the midnight-golf season. I tee off at 9:30 p.m., my ball soaring six feet toward clouds hanging over blue and white-striped mountains beginning to take on a rosy glow. At 10, I am five-putting the second hole, distracted by a brilliant pink sky below clouds that seem to be burning on their undersides — on top, they are whipped cream — inverted strawberry meringues. By 10:30 the sun is dipped below now purple mountains, but its memory lingers in a sky turned suddenly orange. At 11, I slice into a lake turned copper color by the reflection of the sun which has dropped behind navy blue mountains.

"The sun is snoozing," says my sourdough golfing partner, moving back toward the clubhouse. "We have a drink now." On the clubhouse porch, at midnight, it is still light enough to read a menu, but not light enough to recover lost balls. The air is cool, 49 degrees (it was 73 when we teed off), and hazy. Like early twilight in the rest of America. At 1 a.m., the sun rises again above the mountains, repeating the same color process backwards, with the paleness gradually becoming vivid, the gray clouds fluffing back to white. The mountains become giants again, sky and water find their lost blue.

The game concludes in brilliant warm sunlight at 4 a.m. The only forgettable part of the fantastic night in this fabulous land is the score.

Alaska is glorious, and it is tough and awesome. If there were such a thing as the seven wonders of the American continent, they could well all be found in that one state.

"But people in the 'lower 48' don't realize what's at stake right now in Alaska," according to Robert Belous, who lives there. "All they hear about is the pipeline."

"Right now we're working up to a big battle over what to do with millions of acres of Alaska — preserve it in the form of national park land, as an awesome work of nature for generations of Americans to visit, or let it fall into the hands of industrialists, businessmen and others who'd like to move ahead with maximum development of its natural resources."

"The decision is in the hands of Congress. Whatever Congress decides will be historic."

At issue are 32.3 million

Phyllis Battelle

acres of federal land — the property of the American people. Environmentalists and the National Park Service, for whom Belous is a park planner, have proposed that they be set aside in nine new national parks. They see it as America's last chance to save, for the people, some of the unspoiled wilderness and wildlife it supports.

Opposed are powerful businessmen seeking the petroleum, minerals and timber. Great fortunes can once again be carved from that Alaskan earth, if Congress so decides.

Belous, ecologist as well as planner, points out that "in Alaska, we are facing the ultimate destiny. Looking at what we've done to the living environment in the lower 48 states, we realize that this is it. Our backs are hard against the Arctic ice pack. If we don't save some land for this and future generations to visit as a respite against the crush of modern society, there'll be no place else to go."

The proposed system of parkland is unique. The 32.2 million proposed acres (representing a huge expanse — double the amount of land in all our present park system — yet only nine per cent of Alaska's land mass) is divided into nine areas. Each chosen for its singular quality. There are thundering cascades; immense tundra valleys where caribou and wolf play out their entwined destinies; three major mountain ranges; sand dunes where summer temperatures reach 100 degrees — these above the Arctic circle; lonely beaches from which one can see the mist-shrouded coastline of Siberia.

Belous points out that in 1872, when a few visionaries persuaded Congress to set aside its first national park, Yellowstone, there were many who said it was so remote that nobody would ever visit it.

Now, opponents of the Alaska park system are trying to say that those parks would be too remote. "I don't think that's a problem," smiles Belous. "Wherever there's a national park, people go. The problem is not how to get people there, but how to protect the environment from the impact — how to keep the ground from buckling. And Alaska is not as far away from the population centers in the 1970's as Yellowstone was in 1872. . . you could get knocked off by Indians on your way to our first national park."

Congress has had the Alaska park proposal since January, 1974. It is committed to act on it by 1978. The quiet struggle between environmentalists and industrialists is on.

Alaska's congressional delegation is opposed to the national parks plan, preferring economic development to beauty-in-perpetuity. And rarely are park projects approved by Congress when the congressmen from the state in question are opposed.

"So it could be quite a battle," says Belous, who is trying to spread the message that this is America's last chance to preserve the last wilderness it has.

Anyone who wants to see the beauty of a great state, or play midnight-golf, is reminded that your congressman is only a 13-cent stamp away.

Federal campaign funding not universally popular

A bipartisan group of congressmen agreed this week that the federal funding of the last presidential election was so satisfactory that perhaps the principle should be applied to congressional elections, which this year operated under contribution limits only.

Federal financing of House and Senate contests through a tax form check-off scheme would not, of course, meet with universal approval in the halls of Congress. Beneath all the arguments about inhibiting freedom of expression by curtailing private donations in favor of federal money lies incumbent opposition to providing previously lesser-known challengers with a ready-made campaign war chest.

But think what changes would result from federally-financed congressional elections. With the impact of private and special interest contributions diluted or done away with altogether, candidates could not accuse one another of being "owned" by labor, or business, or the teachers, or the environmentalists, or the utilities, etc.

Candidates and their managers and public relations experts might have to come up with real issues, not phony charges and straw men.

And if limits are drawn as they were for the presidential campaign spending, it might even become impossible for someone to buy a seat in Congress. Several went to the highest bidder this year in shameless spending exercises.

But don't count on Congress to give away the incumbents advantage or to further dilute the power of special interest money.

Reform comes slowly on Capitol Hill.

Giving spirit lags

It seems the holiday spirit is not as infectious as in past years.

Although a local radio station's traditional "Operation Santa Claus," which provides toys for Lincoln youngsters, appears to be in good shape financially, donations to other charitable enterprises are lagging.

The United Way clearinghouse which is coordinating the food basket program for a number of human service agencies says 200 food baskets for needy families have been filled already, but the effort is about 100 baskets short. "We're really behind on donors," said a spokesman for the United Way. Persons interested in donating food or cash for Christmas baskets for the needy can call 432-5547.

And the Salvation Army's Tree of Lights campaign is only a little over halfway home toward meeting its $40,000 goal. There is still some eight days to go. Donations can be dropped in Salvation Army kettles or mailed to P. O. Box 80206 in Lincoln.

It would be uncharacteristic of sharing, caring Lincolniters if these goals are not met.

Those people here and elsewhere in the state who are supporters of the University of Nebraska band also have a few more days to help the band reach its goal of $40,000 to finance a trip to the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl game in Houston. An anonymous donor has offered to match all public contributions up to $20,000. As of Thursday, public contributions amounted to some $14,000.

If the response is adequate and the band drive is successful this time, the football and band loving public should be guaranteed it — and the band — will be spared last-minute fundraising attempts in future years in favor of the university coming up with a permanent funding arrangement for band trips.

Hard-nosiness is now passe

William Safire

Washington — Meeting Bert Lance, who is to be the Carter administration's chief budget officer, for the first time last week, I narrowly resisted the impulse to reach out and squeeze his nose.

The reason for this odd urge is that Lance has been invariably described — by reporters, profilers, editorialists and pundits — as a "hard-nosed banker."

In an earlier day, bankers were known as "fishy-eyed," a term intended to be pejorative. Now, however, fishy-eyedness has become popular, which has spawned "hard-nosed" as the required adjective for Democrats anxious to assure taxpayers they are not about to be sloppily compassionate.

Why do Democratic politicians now want to appear "hard-nosed," and why do we all play along with their desire? The reason is that liberals think that most businessmen are conservatives, and politicians believe that the way to a businessman's heart is to make self-reliant noises, touch all the zero-bases of efficiency, and squirt nose-hardener into their nostrils.

Wrong, wrong, wrong. The big businessman who thrives on competition, who actually lives with the work ethic, is a myth. He no longer exists. Some small businessmen have those crusty qualities, and now and then a big business manager shows certain entrepreneurial tendencies, but these are regarded as throwbacks. In today's top corporate echelons, to be really hard-nosed is to be hopelessly old-fashioned.

Consider price controls. Jimmy Carter has publicly eschewed them, thinking thereby to win the affection of "the business community." But he is at least a generation out of phase. Most managers up in their eerie eeries do not despise controls, they like controls. It is the labor leaders who despise controls.

Which is natural. All too many top business managers are hooked on stability, certainty, order, long-range plans; controls, to them, mean playing by the rules, settling for a predictable profit margin, minimizing risk. Top labor leaders know that controls means wage controls, an end to the need for labor unions.

Eschew that over, Carter. One of my major sins in life was to write the Aug. 15, 1971 presidential address freezing wages and prices. When Mr. Nixon worried privately about it being a double-cross of his business supporters, John Connally assured him — quite rightly, as it turned out — that "big" businessmen were fairly panting for the security blanket of controls. George Shultz, who hated the suspension of economic freedom, went along only because he was certain America's free labor movement would bust any control system before it became permanent.

The myth of top-management hard-nosiness can also be observed in the way some businessmen seek to eliminate competition in the aircraft industry.

Eastern Airlines President Frank Borman, a hard-nosed former astronaut, is a scrappy, likeable, go-getting executive who probably considers himself an economic conservative. But he has put forth some wistful wondering if it would not be more efficient for airlines to buy our next generation of commercial aircraft from a "single source," rather than have the present three manufacturers make big investments in prototypes and then compete for sales.

Borman's intent is to lower the cost of the aircraft, which is laudable, but his method is the Big Government "Apollo Project" way — the negotiated bid with the single supplier — and that monopoly philosophy is pernicious.

Some airline executives are tired of the "old" Boeing 727 or the Lockheed C130, which are relatively cheap now because their development costs have long ago been recovered.

They wish they could have a more perfect plane, suited exactly to their needs, and are uncomfortable with the economic discipline of having to accept yesterday's design.

How easy it would be, they think, to have a single source, a government-protected monopoly, to buy the newest planes at whatever cost, which would then be passed on to the consumer. Easy, but anti-competitive. No sweat for the executive; more control for the bureaucrat; ultimately, higher cost for the air traveler.

The secret desire of so many top-level managers for controls and regulated monopoly is never openly stated; on the contrary, the rhetoric is always for "stopping the wage-push by monopolistic unions" or "helping us to buy more efficiently so we can compete better." But today's managerial trend is not toward accepting risk. It is toward getting government help to avoid risk, thus becoming socially responsible, or "soft-nosed."

The irony is that liberal politicians still think that businessmen think that hard-nosiness is next to godliness; and so the pols pretend to be tough, while the managers have long ago become tenderhearted. It is as if Big Government and Big Business are now marching toward each other's former goals.

Why should we speed toward death?

Kingsbury Smith

Washington — More than 9,000 lives will have been saved this year by the 55-mph national maximum speed limit.

That is the estimate of Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman, who hopes the American driver will remember that obeying that law not only saves lives but also saves money and energy.

In an exclusive interview with the Hearst newspapers, Coleman said an additional 12,000 lives a year would be saved if all the people whose cars are equipped with seat belts would use them.

"The original purpose of the 55-mph law," Coleman added, "was to save gasoline — to conserve our dwindling domestic petroleum supplies and reduce our vulnerability to economic manipulation by foreign oil interests. Reduced highway speeds have saved fuel, but not as much as could be saved if everyone respected the 55-mph limit. The Federal Highway Administration estimates that if everyone drove 55 mph, we could save up to three billion gallons of gasoline a year.

"The extent to which the 55-mph limit is being respected has, however, paid an extra dividend — a dividend that proves the correlation between speed and highway deaths. From 1967 through 1972, highway deaths were rising about one per cent each year — some 500 more deaths each year.

"In 1973, before enactment of the 55-mph speed limit, the national highway death toll was close to 55,000. Since the law went into effect in 1974, the average annual death toll has been about 46,000. This year it will be about 45,600."

By driving a compact car at 55 mph instead of 70 mph, one gets three more miles per gallon gas. On a standard car, the saving is about two more miles per gallon.

If all drivers observed the 55-mph limit, the public's out-of-pocket gasoline expenses would, it is estimated, be reduced by about $1.85 billion a year.

When Maryland first imposed strict enforcement of the 55-mph law, state police arrests increased from an average of 300 a day to 1,000 a day. Hundreds of letters poured into the State House, with 80% angrily protesting. When the life-saving results became apparent after three months of enforcement, there was an astonishing turnaround in the mail. Eighty per cent of the letters approved the law.

In Arizona, as well as in some other states across the nation, the 55-mph speed limit has brought highway fatalities down about 30 per cent compared with what they were before the law was enacted.

Secretary Coleman said he was not entirely satisfied with the way the law is being enforced," he added.

"People just don't think that if you have a six-lane highway, you should be limited to 55 mph."

The transportation secretary has the right to withhold federal highway funds from any state which fails to enforce the 55-mph limit, but Coleman said he had not applied the pressure. "In each case, I thought there were facts which justified me in not withholding funds," he added.

The federal-aid highway amendment of 1974 requires the governor of each state to certify by Jan. 1 that the 55-mph speed limit is being enforced on all public highways. Those who fail to do so next month may find that the Carter administration's secretary of transportation may not prove to be as understanding and lenient as Coleman.

'Christian Soldiers' parody unappreciated

Offended by parody

Deshler, Neb. I am writing to protest the printing of the parody of "Onward Christian Soldiers" which appeared on the front page of the Star sports section Friday, Dec. 10. I believe a lamentable lack of discretion and taste were demonstrated by the staff in allowing the lyrics to be printed.

A newspaper should never be expected to espouse any one religious belief. Conversely, it should not resort to printing items which are offensive to any religious body.

As a Christian, I was deeply offended by such phrases as "winning points with Jesus" — "our backfield is Father, Son and Holy Ghost" and "even God Almighty makes a few mistakes." Whether or not offense was intended by the article is irrelevant. Christians who deeply love and revere their Lord must be saddened and deeply disappointed to find that His name has been used so flippantly and irreverently by The Star.

I do not expect a retraction of the article, but I believe that the Christian readers of The Star have a right to expect that it refrain from printing such offensive articles in the future.

CHARLES H. LIEDER

Disappointed in article

Lincoln, Neb.

As a very avid sports fan, I have appreciated The Star's coverage in the sports section, and I also have appreciated the desire to involve readers in stories and articles. However, I was greatly disappointed in the slant of the article concerning the "Great Guy Award" roast with Coach Osborne on Dec. 1. I know The Star didn't originate the song, but I couldn't understand the point of printing it — especially on the top of the front page of the sports section.

I know that a number of the coaches and players on the football team have personal relationships with God. Also, a large percentage of The Star's reading population too know God personally. Printing that song and article, "Onward Christian Jockstraps," was very disrespectful. Even though I know it was meant to be light and humorous, it didn't uphold the quality of life style that a Christian can have.

The reason it bothers me is that people don't see the Christian life as it is because they don't have the right concept of God. We make Him someone who He is not. And thus, they don't get the right concept of the quality of life a Christian can have. From experience I know that life as a growing Christian (someone who has personally invited Christ into His life) is by far the best way. So I'm concerned that the song and article may have detracted from the chance others would have to experience life at its best.

God doesn't need me to defend Him, obviously, but I would like others to have the chance to grow in a relationship with Him as I have. I don't want us as human beings to drag God down to who we think He is. He is and deserves far greater. So, thus, I don't want to simply let this article slide by.

Thanks so much for the interest. The article about Steve Sloan of Texas Tech showed The Star's willingness to show the other side of the Christian life. Let's not mess around with God disrespectfully!

'That shall he reap'

Potter, Neb. The Star has been coming into our home for some time now, and our family has enjoyed it. We changed from another daily paper because we felt the Star made an attempt to present the better things in life in spite of the general trend, while other papers played up the worst type of news.

As a result, we were deeply disturbed after reading the song ridiculing the Christian faith and Coach Osborne, published on the first page of the sports section. Surely it was presented in a most unsportsmanlike and most degrading manner to readers, especially those of the Christian faith. We do feel an apology is in order and trust this policy will not continue.

We are also very concerned for all those having a part in this, as the Bible warns us in Galatians 6:7: "Be not deceived, God is not mocked, for whatever a man sows, that shall he also reap."

THE ELMER WILLS

Sour grapes?

Lincoln, Neb. If Roy Gray feels that the tax burden could be eased by a fine and imprisonment for cohabitation, think how few if any would be needed if fines could be imposed on people like him who spend so much time and energy on minding other people's business.

Could it possibly be sour grapes for being a generation too late to enjoy "free life style"?

LINDA KAY PUEPKKE

Curiouser

Lincoln, Neb. Now that the Justice Department has rescued Mr. Burbach's job, let's see what they say about Senator Mahoney. He was still in the Legislature when he took the job and they certainly can't say that director of the Game Commission is not a state job. This should be interesting. It gets curiouser and curiouser.

Sailor targets submarine drugs

Washington (UPI) — A sailor caught smoking marijuana aboard a nuclear missile submarine says drug abuse is widespread aboard the subs, is condoned by some officers and penalties are reduced for highly skilled technicians.

"The Navy is covering up a drug scandal," Gary D. Anderson, 22, of Denver, Colo., who served aboard the USS Thomas Jefferson, said Thursday in a telephone interview from his current duty station in Illinois.

Anderson also disclosed an incident in which 16 gallons of water contaminated with radioactivity was discharged accidentally from the Jefferson into the harbor in Charleston, S.C., last May.

The Navy said an investigation determined the radiation released was below safe minimums for human exposure. But it refused to give details of those minimums or the exact amount of radiation involved.

"I reported on board the sub June 28, 1975, and was first introduced to drugs on June 29, 1975," he said of his experience on the highly secret Polaris Missile submarine, regarded as among the most prestigious assignments in the Navy.

"If you want drugs, there's a dealer on one submarine or the next."

Anderson, then a missile technician, was fined and ordered off submarine duty after being caught smoking marijuana last June 12 in the submarine's lower level missile compartment while it was undergoing a refit at the Mare Island Naval Shipyard in California.

The incident led to testimony from him and others which Navy spokesmen acknowledge implicated a total of 27 crewmen.

The spokesmen said 14 were cleared and 13 received disciplinary action, including fines, rank reductions and dismissal from submarine duty.

Anderson charged that dismissals are usually meted out to lower ranking seamen for possession of marijuana or other drug offenses, while nuclear reactor or missile technicians whose skills are in demand get off more easily.

In his own case, he said, dismissal came for "being caught smoking red handed."

He was reduced one grade in rank, fined $500 and shipped to four other posts before his present post at the Glenview Naval Air Station in Illinois, where he works on training simulators.

"I was told on at least three occasions by officers ranging in rank from chief warrant officer to lieutenant that 'we don't care if you smoke, just don't get caught,'" he said.

He charged that amphetamines and LSD were also used aboard the Jefferson, the USS George Washington and USS Theodore Roosevelt, and that no action had been taken on his testimony implicating officers or charges of preferential treatment.

Navy spokesmen acknowledged that 17 men aboard the Washington had been punished for drug abuse in the past year, but gave no further details.

Missile submarines normally carry a 140-man crew on their two-month undersea patrols. The incident on the Jefferson involved members of Anderson's crew and a relief crew, with a total of 17 in Anderson's group being implicated.

Man guilty in Manson style slayings

Lincoln, Ill. (UPI) — Michael Drabing, 21, was found guilty of the "Helter Skelter" murders of a Lincoln farmer, his wife, and his daughter Thursday by a judge who said he found Drabing sane at the time of the slayings.

Drabing is accused of killing members of the Lloyd Schneider family with repeated stab wounds. The prosecution contended he had been influenced by the book and movie "Helter Skelter," based on the murderous Charles Manson "Family."

Judge James Heiple delivered the verdict at the conclusion of eight days of hearings in which psychiatrists argued about Drabing's mental state.

Drabing was accused of breaking into the farm home near Lincoln last Aug. 19 and knifing to death Schneider, his wife, Phyllis, 45, and their daughter, Terri, 17.

Heiple ordered him held without bail. He set Jan. 21 for post trial motions, and instructed an adult probation officer to perform a presentence investigation.

"In view of Mr. Drabing's expressed intentions (of killing other people) there is no bail high enough. I order Michael Drabing held without bail," the judge said.

Contraceptive's ban asked

(c) Newhouse News Service

Washington — A contraceptive drug designed for poor women, one injection of which prevents pregnancy for three months, is more dangerous than relying solely on abortion for birth control, according to a Ralph Nader research group that has asked the federal government to ban the drug.

"I think it (Depo-Provera) is considerably more dangerous than using IUDs (intrauterine devices) or abortions as a method of birth control," Anita Johnson, a lawyer and co-director of the Health Research Group, said.

Although animal studies showed as early as 1972 that the synthetic hormone — a form of progestin — used in Depo-Provera caused cancer in animals, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) approved large-scale tests of the contraceptive for women in special circumstances.

The drug was to be restricted for use in women "who refuse or are unable to accept the responsibility demanded by other contraceptive methods," the FDA said in 1973 in approving trial use of the drug.

The FDA 1973 approval also required that women taking the drug understand that it could make them sterile. A Health Research Group study cited that to back up their demand that Dr. Theodore Cooper, assistant secretary of health in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, ban it.

Depo-Provera and other long-lasting contraceptives have been promoted by population control advocates for use by the mentally retarded and in underdeveloped nations.

The type of progestin used in Depo-Provera has been banned for use in conventional oral contraceptives because of evidence that it increases the incidence of breast cancer in dogs, the study said.

Other studies cited by the Health Research Group suggest that the drug may increase the incidence of cervical cancer in Depo-Provera users. It has been found to cause birth defects in the infants born to women who become pregnant despite taking the drug.

In addition to its apparent effect on fertility — up to half of the women using Depo-Provera have stopped menstruating for as long as a year after giving up the drug in some studies — it may cause other changes in the body's hormonal functioning, the study said.

"No one knows quite how the drug works," a Health Research Group spokeswoman said. "It may just circulate around in the blood, but there are other indications that it binds itself to the pituitary gland and that's the way it prevents conception."

This effect on the pituitary gland — which regulates the sex hormones as well as other bodily functions — may also explain the sterility that follows use of Depo-Provera, she said.

The Health Research Group sharply criticized what it termed the FDA's imminent intent to approve general use of Depo-Provera, modified by a requirement that patients receive an information sheet describing the possible risks.

Uncle Sam's Register Bank retains popularity 70 years

(c) New York Times
New York — For 70 years, through recession, depression, boom and bust, Americans have placed their trust in one bank above all others.
Though it pays not a single cent in interest, offers no loans, provides no mortgages, insures no deposits, possesses no alarm system, maintains no checking service and imposes strict limits on its depositors, it has retained its popularity.
It's about 6 inches high, 4 inches wide and 5 inches deep, and while the name of its parent concern is meaningless to most people, mention of the bank itself usually touches off an excursion of nostalgia.
"I used to have one when I was a kid," people say. Or, "My father had one."
It's the Uncle Sam's 3 Coin Register Bank, a tough, dependable adjunct to thrift made to retail for $5.95 and to swallow up pennies, nickels, dimes, quarters, half-dollars and rolled-up bills year after year.
It's the little bank that looks at 25 cents, registers the input of nickels, dimes and quarters in a tiny window, accepts half-dollars through a slot in the back and bills through an adjacent hole, unlocks at $10, has a capacity of $50 and the strength to thwart all but the most determined jimmyers.
"The literature shows it has been on the market continuously since 1907," said Lewis N. Masters, the president of the Western Stampings Company of Jackson, Mich., which has been making the bank since taking over its original manufacturer, the Durable Toy and Novelty Company, on its 50th anniversary in 1957.

Today's bank, said Masters, has the same general appearance as the original. "The only real changes to the mechanism have been of an engineering nature, to make it better," he said.
According to H. R. (Ray) Worthing, the plant manager, the Uncle Sam's 3 Coin Register Bank was invented in Cleveland by a man named Payson. At first, he said, the inventor maintained a factory in Cleveland and general offices in New York.
Until last year, he said, manufacturing was done in Jackson. But now, he said, it has been relocated in the Orient and England.
Inflation, he said, has had little effect at this savings institution. Its normal retail price of $5.95, Masters said, is a dollar more than the going price when Western Stamping bought Durable Toy in 1957.
"I think basically that it's a product that people young and old can identify with," said Masters. "It's made of heavy-gauge steel. It's durable and it lasts. And for $5 or $6 as a retail item, it's a good value in today's marketplace."

Legionnaire's probe looks at gas

Philadelphia (UPI) — A toxicological research team will be set up to search for a possible link between a poison gas used in World War I and the so-called "Legionnaire's disease" that killed 29 people last summer.
A Pennsylvania Health Department spokesman said Thursday, "Probably for the first time in a long time we are going after something concrete."
But he tempered that by adding, "I don't think anyone has said we're on the brink of a major breakthrough."

The new probe will be part of a continuing search into the illness' cause and will be led by Leonard Sideman, 47, director of the division of clinical chemistry and hematology at the State Bureau of Laboratories in Philadelphia.
He was appointed by Dr. Leonard Bachman, state secretary of health, at the same time Bachman announced the new probe.

The research team will first zero in on phosgene, a poisonous gas used by the Germans in World War I and now used as an industrial raw material in producing polyurethane foam.
More specifically, the team will research whether leaking refrigerant from the air conditioning system at the Bellevue Stratford Hotel, where most of the 180 who were made ill by the disease stayed or visited, could have changed to phosgene and afflicted the victims.

They will see if the leaking refrigerant could have gotten into the rooms where legionnaires congregated.
The National Resource and Protection Agency in New York, in a report on fluorocarbon refrigerants, cited a possible link between the gas and the deaths, but said research done so far had not resulted in absolute proof.

Dr. David Sencer, of the National Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, said autopsies on the victims showed their lungs looked different from those of people who died from phosgene poisoning.
Phosgene is considered a secondary poison which can be formed by fluorinated refrigerants coming in contact with heat. If inhaled it causes lung irritation and excessive fluid formation in the lungs.
As one chemist explained, "In effect, you drown."

25% are farmers

New York (UPI) — A profile of state legislators by the Insurance Information Institute shows that the occupational makeup of the legislatures varies according to specific regions. For instance, in the west north central states of the Dakotas, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri and Nebraska, 25% of the lawmakers have agricultural backgrounds. But only 1% of the legislators in the middle Atlantic and 4% in the New England states were farm-

Scrooge jams Santa channel

Spokane, Wash. (AP) — "Scrooge" is jamming the airwaves to cut off communications with Santa Claus, says an angry citizen band radio operator.
The operator said a CB user using the name of the Charles Dickens character kept talking on Channel 10 during an hour informally reserved for children's messages to Santa.

Complaints of foul language and buildup of the noise level prompted a complaint to the FBI, said the operator, who asked not to be identified.
The "North Pole Radio Network" was forced to switch to another channel so youngsters could get their requests through to St. Nick, the operator said.

He built house— from wheelchair

Chattanooga, Tenn. (AP) — Few people even consider building their own homes these days. But Otis Pickett did it — from his wheelchair.

"I didn't give it much thought," says Pickett, paralyzed from the waist down since 1934 when a bullet severed his spinal cord in a hunting accident. "It was something I wanted to do, so I just went ahead and did it."

Pickett, 65, operates the Chattanooga recreation department's woodworking shop five nights a week and has a home in the city. Over the past four years, working on weekends, he has built his A-frame vacation house near Falls Creek Falls State Park about 70 miles north of Chattanooga.

He had some help from friends with the heavy work, such as pouring the cement floor, but the house is very much his own work.

Pickett built the walls and fireplace himself with rocks he collected on a small tractor. He made and installed his own paneling. He put in his own windows. And now he is making most of the furniture for the house.

Since the house has a loft, Pickett installed a block and tackle on one of the rafters to hoist himself up. "It is hard going up but easy coming down," he said, smiling.

He lives in the house on weekends and vacation. Electricity and telephone are absent by design. Cooking is done on a fireplace or on a grill in the backyard.

Pickett, the son of a Pikeville, Tenn., coal miner, taught himself woodworking after the hunting accident and began building furniture to support himself and his wife.

"We never got any welfare from anyone," he said. "We've always done everything for ourselves, done anything that would make a nickel. It sounds like I'm bragging a bit. And I am. But I'm proud of it."

Otis Pickett reflects near the A-frame house he built.

Another red food dye believed cancer risk

Washington (UPI) — The American public is being exposed to a "substantial" cancer risk by the only red coloring still widely used in the food industry, two researchers told the government Thursday.

The dye, Red No. 40, is being produced at the rate of 2 million pounds a year for use in everything from ice cream to soda pop. It is the second most widely used food coloring in the country, behind Yellow No. 5.

The dye has come from relative obscurity to prominence because the Food and Drug Administration this year banned two other red dyes — Red No. 2, once the most widely used coloring, and Red No. 4, whose only food use was in maraschino cherries.

Red 40 is the last red dye which can be mixed properly with liquid foods, and a ban would create problems for the food industry.

Dr. Michael Jacobson of the Center for Science in the Public Interest, representing himself and Dr. Samuel Epstein of the University of Illinois Medical Center, said "there seems to be no reasonable basis on which to allow the continued exposure of the American public to the dye."

He appeared at the opening session of a study group consisting of experts from the FDA, the National Cancer Institute and the National Center for Toxicological Research. The experts will make recommendations to the FDA after looking at the evidence.

"It is difficult to escape the conclusion that Red No. 40 should never have been admitted into our food supply," Jacobson said. "Continued exposure pending further study and evaluation can no longer be justified. Red 40 is a widely used cosmetic additive that serves no nutritional, preservative or other necessary function in our food supply."

"The carcinogenic risk to the public is clearly substantial and not blanced by any matching benefit to society as a whole."

One FDA researcher told the meeting that tests conducted by Allied Chemical Co., manufacturer of the dye, showed malignant lymphomas developing in mice earlier than would be expected. He said there is an indication "of the presence of an effect due to the dye."

Jacobson said the dye is banned in other countries, including Canada, England, Italy, France, Sweden, Norway and Israel. Allied ran the tests because it wanted to sell the dye in Canada and the Ottawa government requested additional proof of safety.

Soviet harvest a record

Moscow (UPI) — The Soviet Union apparently harvested a record grain crop this year and is expected to stop buying U.S. grain for the near future, a U.S. Department of Agriculture official said Thursday.

Richard E. Bell, assistant secretary for international affairs and commodity programs, said Soviet trade officials had referred to their "record crop" during three days of consultations.

The Soviets told Bell final figures on the 1976 crop were not yet available, but they quoted a Nov. 5 statement by Politburo member Fyodor D. Kalakov that 230 million tons had been harvested by early November. That was only 2.5 million tons short of the record 1973 harvest.

"We have concluded that when those figures are finally published it will probably be a record crop," Bell said, adding the Soviets had successfully sown their winter crops.

"I also do not see them being a purchaser of any more American grain anytime soon," he said.

But Bell said the Soviets had reserved the option to buy another 1.4 million tons of grain allowed under a five-year grain deal with the U.S. signed in October, 1975.

Taxis hailed for holidays

Minneapolis (AP) — In an effort to cut down on drinking drivers, Fingerhut Corp. is offering its 2,500 employees and their friends free taxi rides home after they've imbibed during the holiday season.

Officials of the direct-mail marketing firm advised employees Wednesday that they should take a taxi at company expense rather than try to drive when they've had too much to drink.

The company also told workers they can offer taxi transportation to anyone they think should not be driving.

Postcard

By Stan
Delaplane

San Francisco — As any schoolboy knows, Wild Bill Hickok was holding aces and eights when he was shot in a deadwood saloon. No observer looked at the deck to see if Wild Bill would have filled his hand on the draw.

History is poorer for such oversights.

Here's Liz Taylor newly married again and planting a cypress tree near Jerusalem.

I got out my clips on Liz and found: "I intend to become just a plain housewife," said Elizabeth Taylor plainly.

I reported that a good many years ago she had just married Eddie Fisher, and that is what she said.

The envelope of clippings goes on from there. None of it is plain, but it's a rich, historical record.

For what she's done for journalism, we should name Liz a national monument.

Jolly fireplace nights. We are all waiting for Christmas. Presents are padlocked in a storeroom to which only I have the key. And I won't tell where it is.

The children said: "Just tell us where it is. We won't look."

I said: "No way." (I am made of bionic nerves. A Six Million Dollar Man — but only 30 days credit.)

"Twas Christmas broached the midnight ale.

"Twas Christmas told the merriest tale:

"A Christmas gambol oft could cheer

"The poor man's heart through half the year."

How did Liz escape being a plain housewife? She shed Ed. Married Richard Burton, fresh from his Roman armor in "Cleopatra."

So the life of plain housewife — chintz, curtains blowing in the window, a dab of flour on the nose — ended before it really began.

And all across the nation, plain housewives (at second cups of coffee on uncleared breakfast tables) read it and ground their teeth with envy.

It's not all a bed of roses, being a plain housewife. Roses can give you hay fever.

We put in the Christmas tree a few days ago. One crimson ball has fallen. Left silvery fragments on the rug. The house smells of pine.

We hung a little mistletoe. If a lady steps under the mistletoe, you may kiss her. (Not many of us chivalrous fellows left. A pity.)

Two-thirds of the world doesn't kiss. So if you have an Eskimo lady under the mistletoe, rub noses with her. It's the spirit that counts, friend.

Looking at it from the outside, Plain Housewife is an Academy Award part any actress would like to play.

But as any plain housewife can tell you — (and often does tell Plain Joe) — it's not easy. The garden roses must be cultivated. That's plain hell on the hands, even with gardening gloves.

Eddie Fisher no doubt came home and sang a few bars of "We Could Have Danced All Night." With Mike Todd it was all flying dishes and black eyes.

Richard Burton brought home diamonds as big as the Ritz.

Plain Joe comes home and says: "Pork chops again?"

Merry Christmas, Liz Taylor, wherever you are.

Carter called 'unobtrusive' midshipman

Spokane, Wash. (AP) — Midshipman Jimmy Carter, introverted and unobtrusive during his three years at the U.S. Naval Academy, has changed his style of living, says a former classmate of the president-elect.

Spokane County Superior Court Judge William J. Grant, 53, characterized the former Georgia governor as "unobtrusive." "He was a very low key type of individual, and worked hard," said Grant.

"He has changed his whole style of living, with a real dedicated purpose, of course," said Grant, who voted for the Democrat Nov. 2.

Why not makeup for men?

By Harry Jackson
Star Staff Writer

First came aftershave lotion, then colognes, then hair sprays, all for men. Can the rest of the painted trappings be far behind?

No, proclaim some men's grooming experts who deal with male vanity on a daily basis.

"Men are taking care of themselves a lot better than they did 10 years ago," said Dean Korensky, barber-stylist and part owner of The Clipper hair styling shop.

Korensky said he is seeing more men asking for cosmetics advice, seeking facial treatments and not being too "macho" for hair spray.

"Too many people think cosmetics only have to do with the face," Korensky said. "But some cosmetics do beneficial things like get rid of scars or other problems."

But, is the masculine gender ready for the cleanup-paintup-fixup ceremonies women have faced for centuries?

Possibly, says an Omaha expert. "We found that on the East and West Coasts and in Europe men's makeup is selling well," said Larry Homan, owner of the Stylistics styling shop in Omaha.

Homan's shop is a rarity in Nebraska; it's doing a sizable business in men's makeup.

Most of Homan's business involves thinning bushy eyebrows, covering facial scars, pock marks and other skin flaws, he said. "There's a way to cover them up without making it look like a man's made up."

"There's always been a men's makeup clientele," Homan said, "mainly made up of men in the public eye: entertainers, broadcasters."

Recently, two new groups have joined the corps: "the young and adventurous and men who look older than they really are because of their job or lifestyle," Homan said.

"A youth may come into the shop and say he's got a big date and wants to look good for it," Homan said.

"I don't believe it will be for the average person," Homan said. "I think, though, that members of the business community may start using it more. It would help them in presentations and when meeting people."

Homan's shop carries the Robert Marc makeup line, which offers treatments for skin tones from black to white and for men and women.

He doesn't feel the practice is emasculating. "Even in the days of the Roman Empire men wore makeup," Homan said. "You can change a person's whole face by using makeup, and still not hurt his masculinity."

When more men do start using makeup, Homan said, they'll probably be better off than women.

"Women never really get any professional counseling for using makeup," Homan said. "But when men decide to take the plunge they'll usually seek out a pro to tell them how to do it right."

"Ninety per cent of women don't know how to apply makeup properly," he said.

As for Lincoln, only two extensive lines of non-therapeutic men's makeup are being sold on a large scale. In the Hovland-Swanson and Brandeis men's departments are complete, though expensive, lines of men's handsoffiers under the name of Aramis.

The second line, also at Hovland-Swanson, is cosmetics for women which is Erno Laslo overlaps to male clients with rituals of splashes, soaks and rub-ins.

"It's a preparation formerly used for royalty," said Rachel Jordan, a cosmetics buyer for the store.

"Nationwide, many men use it including Johnny Carson and several professional football players."

The treatment may still be classified for royalty with the minimum price tag floating around $65. The cost, though, involves a treatment program, not just the price of a few items.

Craig Jansen obviously enjoys his turkey dinner.

Schools cook up Christmas dinner

By J.L. Schmidt
Star Staff Writer

First grader Craig Jansen introduced his fellow classmates between bites as he enjoyed a special Christmas dinner prepared by the Lincoln Public Schools.

"This is my friend Brian. Take his picture," Craig commanded as he swallowed bites of turkey.

"Yup, it's sure good," he mash-potatoed. Craig knew there was something special about the two big people, new faces in Mrs. Sue Dickenson's classroom where he and other students in the Arnold Training Program (a special education class) get together for daily lunch.

One guy had a camera, the other kept asking questions and interrupting his chomping. But neither managed to steal the show from young Craig.

"Be sure and take his picture. He's my friend," he re-emphasized.

This is Christmas lunch, the reporter offered, and, noting quickly before it disappeared, there's creamed turkey, mashed potatoes, hot roll and butter, pumpkin custard and milk.

You know about Christmas, Craig?
"Sure, Santa Claus."
Have you written to Santa?
"No, but I will."
Is your tree up?
"Yes."

Turkey was more important than Santa and trees.

Theresa Jones, a tablemate, said that her tree is up, and, yes, she likes turkey.

Mrs. Dickenson said the lunch experience is part of the integration of special ed classes into the daily routine of the school.

"Some of the kids go to recess with our students, and it's a great experience for all of them."

Hers is one of a half dozen classes at Arnold School often eat lunch in their classrooms.

The big old lunchroom is sometimes crowded, and often a bit scary for a little first grader, she explained, especially when the bigger kids come along.

"We have a few spills, but, all in all, it isn't too much of a disturbance to eat in the room."

The buzz of activity around four tables indicated the situation is a happy compromise for first graders.

Teacher aide Carol Mestes and student teacher Mary Keeley had their hands full opening stubborn milk cartons and paring down oversized turkey portions.

Miss Keeley, a UNL junior from Scottsbluff, is using her Arnold experience toward an eventual degree in special ed.

The Christmas dinner, served in all schools with a hot lunch program, took more than a ton of turkey, according to Helen Carlson, school lunch supervisor.

Thanksgiving dinner, served a week before Thanksgiving in the schools, was a like portion. Both meals were served on days when the weather was unseasonably warm, and the number eating the meals, especially on the junior and senior high levels, was less than normal, Mrs. Carlson added.

Junior and senior high students had Christmas turkey and dressing, mashed potatoes, peas, candied sweet potatoes, juice, relish plate, cranberry salad and hot roll and butter. In addition, tuna salad, peanut butter or cheese sandwiches were also available, as was the traditional pumpkin custard, cookies and milk.

Dear Abby

By Abigail
Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I recently read in your column a defense of doctors, many of whom were not nearly as rich as most people thought they were.

My husband, a physician, died at 61. He literally worked himself to death making housecalls night and day. He never turned anyone away who needed medical care. He gave his services free when he knew a patient couldn't afford to pay him. And he never overcharged anyone who he knew could pay a larger fee.

When this dedicated man died, his patients moaned and groaned. "Whatever will we do without our dear doctor?" But two years later, their combined unpaid bills totaled $11,000.

Abby, why do some people feel that their doctor bills are automatically cancelled just because their doctor dies? Those bills are owed and should be paid out of respect and appreciation.

If you think this is worth the space in your column, please use it. And if it causes some people to feel uncomfortable, at least they will have gotten the message.

DOCTOR R'S WIDOW:
SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR WIDOW R: It's well worth the space. It also brings to mind an ancient Chinese proverb: "The wise dentist collects his fee while his patient's tooth is still aching."

DEAR ABBY: ON THE SPOT wrote in to say she works with women who ask her where she bought her dress, shoes, etc., and then how much they cost. I have the perfect answer. When people I know ask me a similar question, I tell them it was either the Salvation Army or Goodwill, but I'm not sure which.

They usually chuckle and ask me again, but the answer is always the same. Finally they realize that I am not going to tell them, and they quit asking me.

Meanwhile I chuckle to myself because when I was young, most of my clothes did come from the Goodwill Resale Shop, and people were always complimenting me on my wardrobe.

Sterilization not so traumatic

Boston (UPI) — Sterilization for females is not the psychological or physical nightmare it used to be, according to a study at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

The study said 85% of women sterilized at MGH by a simplified surgical technique have had no regrets and found their sexual activity, mental and physical health have remained the same or have improved.

The operation is called laparoscopic tubal division and can be performed in a short time. A woman can arrive at the hospital at 8 a.m. and leave by 1 p.m., according to Dr. Ann B. Barnes, obstetrician-gynecologist.

The operation requires only two small incisions in the abdomen after which a laparoscope is inserted into the cavity. The laparoscope has forceps attached to electric wires which are heated and used to cauterize the fallopian tubes. The fallopian tubes conduct the egg from the ovary to the uterus.

The incisions made during the operation are so small that women often refer to the operation as "band-aid surgery," Barnes said.

Mass suicide of squid has biologists puzzled

Eastham, Mass. (AP) — Marine biologists say they can only guess at why millions of squid are writhing onto the icy beaches of Cape Cod to die.

The squid have been committing mass suicide since mid-October. They range up to two feet long and occasionally stack up two or three deep along the shore.

"Some days there are so many of them on the beach that it's impossible to walk without stepping on them," said Robert Prescott of the Cape Cod Museum of Natural History.

If picked up and tossed back into the ocean, the squid immediately head straight back onto the sand.

Theories vary about why the squid become suicidal, but some biologists blame it in part on the Russians and other foreigners who have greatly depleted schools of fish which prey on squid.

Doctor is a rarity: He's also a lawyer

Norwich, Conn. (AP) — Jim Harkins is sitting behind his desk, pipe in mouth. The microscope and the pile of wills facing him tell much about his life.

At 53, with crew-cut, gray hair, he is among the 400 doctors — among an estimated 400,000 in the country — that the American Society of Law and Medicine estimates also have law degrees.

A spokeswoman for the society estimated, however, that fewer than 50 practice law and medicine both. Most, she said, have law degrees to deal with malpractice suits or testify as expert witnesses.

At the age of 28, Harkins graduated with honors from New York Medical College. He had worked as a watch repairman to pay his way through pre-med school at Columbia University, graduating cum laude with a bachelor of science degree in chemistry.

Ten years later, the native of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., began studying law when the youngest of his four children was only 2. It took him five years and 46,000 miles of commuting from his home in Norwich to the University of Connecticut Law School Evening Division in Hartford, and 85-mile round trip. At 43, he graduated as the top man in his class.

"I studied by using tape recorders," he said in a weekend interview. "And what I'd do is put my class notes on tape. I didn't tape the lecture.

"I was traveling back and forth to Hartford and I'd play the tapes to myself. It was a very good review. I was carrying on a full time practice of medicine at the time. I don't think without that technique I could have done it."

Harkins operates both medical and law practices from his office with hours from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

"I do the law in between patients, in the evenings and on weekends," he said. "I'm not practicing full-time either, really. I'm devoting part of the time to medicine and part of the time to law. I'm practicing both.

"There isn't that much difference between law and medicine, really," he said. "In medicine, you're taking care of the body and solving the problems of the body. In law, you're really solving the problems of the soul, the mind and personality. There are financial problems. There are wills and so forth.

"One of the things I do more than anything else is wills. Because I think the average client, when they draw a will, is looking for the same sort of person they're looking for when they want a doctor. Someone they can really trust. . . . Someone who can act more or less as a father-adviser to them."

Why did he go from medicine into law?

"I wanted to expand myself a little bit," he said. "You know, you can say, 'Well, I'm too old to do this.' And then five years older you'll say, 'Gee, if I started five years ago I could have done it.'"

How would you bid?

By B. Jay Becker

Your partner opens One Diamond, both sides vulnerable, and the next player bids One Spade. What would you bid now with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠KJ7 ♥A96 ♦Q83 ♣AQ74
2. ♠62 ♥J8 ♦AQ52 ♣KQ83
3. ♠85 ♥AQJ4 ♦Q7 ♣KJ852
4. ♠AJ84 ♥KJ93 ♦AQJ6 ♣10

1. Three notrump. This is the most descriptive bid you can make. The jump to three notrump, whether an opponent intervenes or not, shows a balanced hand, usually 4-3-3-3, with strength in all suits and 16 or 17 high-card points. To that extent, three notrump is a slam try. When the bid is made after a suit overcall by an opponent, the three notrump bid also indicates two stoppers in the adverse suit.

2. Two clubs. The hand is not quite strong enough for a jump raise to three diamonds, which would commit your side to game, and is too strong for a simple two diamond bid, which would not be forcing and could result in missing a game.

In these situations, where your value lies midway between a single and double raise, the best method is to bid a side suit first, planning to support partner's suit later on. This allows partner to stop under game when he has a minimum opening bid.

Bridge

3. Two clubs. Here there is obviously a good chance for game, but where it lies is at this moment uncertain. The proper approach under the circumstances is to describe your hand to partner — both in high cards and distribution — as accurately as possible, and this can best be done by responding two clubs.

You plan to bid two hearts over the expected rebid in diamonds, and in that way identify a holding of four hearts and at least five clubs. Partner will probably then be in position to determine the best final contract.

4. Two spades. There is a good chance for a slam, but you don't quite have the values to undertake it unilaterally. The best way to apprise your partner of the slam prospects is by means of a cuebid. This indicates first-round spade control and at the same time implies good diamond support, which you certainly have. How the bidding continues depends largely on partner's reaction to the cuebid. If he keeps on bidding in minimum terms you would reluctantly have to avoid a slam. But if he shows any interest at all you should not stop short of six.

Three senators seek spy probe

Washington (AP) — Three prominent senators urged the Senate intelligence committee on Thursday to launch a full-scale investigation into the "activities of foreign intelligence agencies in the United States, including the apparent cooperation of the CIA."

A committee spokesman said the panel already has begun a staff-level inquiry into the U.S. operations of the South Korean CIA, Iran's Savak and Chile's DINA. But he said a vote by the full panel would be required before a full-level investigation could be launched.

A letter calling for the probe was sent to the committee late Thursday afternoon by Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md.

They cited reports of U.S. political contributions by the Korean CIA and referred to allegations and harassment of dissidents by the three agencies, as "among the specific charges that might be appropriate for investigation by the committee."

The letter, not yet publicly released, also said "the possibility of on-going collaboration between the CIA and foreign intelligence agencies in the U.S. in exchange for similar collaboration within those foreign countries presents questions concerning the legal authority for such arrangements and their appropriateness."

The two-page letter addressed to intelligence committee chairman Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, cited the bugging by the FBI at CIA request of the Chilean embassy in Washington during the regime of Marxist President Salvador Allende and asked:

"To whom was the information obtained from the electronic surveillance given? Was it in response to requests from Chilean sectors later active in the overthrow of Allende? Was it the only instance of this kind of activity?"

The letter said that relationships between the CIA and foreign intelligence agencies are of particular concern in light of the recent assassination in Washington of Orlando Letelier, a former Chilean foreign minister and ambassador under Allende.

Chilean exile groups have charged that DINA agents were responsible for Letelier's death. The current military government of Chile has strongly denied those assertions.

The three senators asked: "Has there been a permanent relationship between the CIA and the DINA, in which information is supplied to the DINA on Chilean exiles in the United States? Has the CIA known of the contacts between the DINA and individuals residing in the U.S.?"

"These issues transcend the immediate investigation of the assassination of Letelier and focus on the objectives and activities of U.S. intelligence agencies, both in the United States and abroad."

Simpson: trip no junket

Associated Press
Lincoln State Sen. Harold Simpson, elected last month to the Nebraska Public Service Commission, Thursday discounted questions about a state-financed post-election trip this month.

Although Simpson will not return to Unicameral, he obtained permission to attend the National Convention of the Council of State Governments in Lake Tahoe, Nev., Dec. 2-4.

Vouchers indicate the trip will cost the state $465.23 including plane fare, lodging, auto rental and expenses.

"There is no question about it whatsoever," Simpson said of the propriety of the trip. "I'm still a member of the Legislature. I don't know how anybody could question anything I'm elected to and I went there and participated on the Legislature's behalf."

Records indicate Simpson obtained approval for the trip from Lincoln Sen. Wally Barnett, chairman of the Unicameral's executive board. Normally Simpson, as chairman of the Intergovernmental Committee, approves travel for fellow legislators. In a Nov. 17 letter, signed by Barnett granting Simpson permission to attend the convention, Barnett asked for Simpson's permission to attend for himself and for lame duck Sen. George Syas of Omaha. However, neither Barnett nor Syas attended. Barnett said he and Syas decided because of Syas' status, "it would be best if we just didn't go."

Barnett said Simpson made plans to attend five or six months ago, but was unsure when Simpson finalized the plans that it was after the November elections.

"Barnett said 'if he had just come up with the idea in November or December to go on the trip and didn't have any business there then I would have said no.'"

Simpson said, "I don't know what someone is trying to do, but I'm damed tired of it. I don't frivously spend my time while I'm away."

Simpson was referring to preelection charges that he had used his secretary's time and state stationery in his PSC campaign. He was cleared of the charges.

Schuetz considers independent GOP unit

Jack Schuetz of Lincoln says if he decides not to run against Mrs. Anne Batchelder for Republican state chairman, he may organize an independent GOP political action committee.

Other options Schuetz is considering are running for governor or U.S. senator in 1978 and retiring from politics.

Schuetz, Sen. Roman Hruska's

Nebraska representative, will retire from that position late this month. Previously he was state Republican executive director and served on former Rep. Ralph Beermann's staff.

Mrs. Batchelder of Omaha has announced she will ask the state Republican central committee at its Jan. 29 meeting in Hastings for another term as Republican state chairman.

Salvation Army $17,000 short of goal

The Salvation Army Tree of Lights campaign is still nearly $17,000 short of its $40,000 goal.

Capt. Peter VanderVliet reported Thursday that $23,102 had been collected to date with only a week remaining for the campaign to reach its goal.

He said apparently one of the problems this year rests with the mail appeal. Many regular donors reportedly did not receive their appeal letters this year and have been awaiting those to return contributions.

In such cases, Salvation Army supporters are urged to drop their contributions in the mail or in a bellringer's bucket, he said.

The lady doth protest

A Baltimore, Md. woman, denied admittance to a stopped bus because the corner it stopped on wasn't a bus stop, took her case face-to-face with the driver Thursday. The unidentified woman climbed on the front bumper of the bus and exchanged words with the driver for 10 minutes, then stepped down and disappeared into the crowd.

Proposal late by 31 years

Banbury, England (UPI) — Grandmother Patricia Hoey, 51, has received a marriage proposal by mail — 31 years late.

A crumpled 8-page letter from the wartime sweetheart she thought had jilted her was posted in Germany in September, 1945. She married her current husband in 1946.

Small basement fire damages White House

Washington (AP) — A small electrical fire broke out near the bowling alley in the White House basement Thursday night and caused toxic fumes, officials said. One policeman suffered smoke inhalation.

President and Mrs. Ford and son Jack were at home in the upstairs family quarters and were informed of the blaze, a White House spokesman said, but the executive mansion did not need to be evacuated.

Deputy Press Secretary John Carlson said the blaze was confined to an auxiliary battery charger mounted on a wall adjacent to the bowling alley. The fire was extinguished within three or four minutes after firemen arrived, he said.

"We are still trying to determine the cause and damage, if any," Carlson said.

The spokesman said a Secret Service agent and two Executive Protective Service officers responded to an automatic alarm, and after a quick investigation called District of Columbia firemen. One officer was overcome by smoke and was taken to a hospital for treatment.

Fire officials said burning insulation caused toxic polyvinyl chloride gas in the area, and firemen sent into a tunnel leading to the bowling alley area wore breathing apparatus as a precaution.

Belmont Baptist tabs Ubben

Belmont Baptist Church members re-elected Loren Ubben as church moderator and named Jay Voigt, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln student, to a newly-created youth director post at their annual meeting Wednesday.

Deacons elected for three year terms include Rod Jernberg, Vern Schokl, Jeff Vermeer, Shirley Flemmig and Tom Ekvall.

Other officers elected were Delmar Hutson, trustee council chairman; Else Williamson, church school superintendent; Irma Udd, treasurer; Merna Jernberg, financial secretary; Kayrn Jones, church clerk and Helen Ekvall, historian.

Case dismissed

Los Angeles (AP) — A California appeals court ordered the judge in Charles Manson's murder trial to throw out a contempt sentence against reporter William Farr. The order apparently ended Farr's five-year battle to protect his secret sources.

School bus and car collide

Clearwater (AP) — Eight persons were hospitalized, none in critical condition, after the crash of a car and school bus on a county road intersection six miles southwest of here Thursday afternoon.

Sgt. Clarence Zurcher of the Nebraska State Patrol said five other persons were treated at the Antelope County Hospital in Neligh and released.

Sgt. Zurcher said the Clearwater School Bus was taking children home when it collided with a car at a blind intersection. The car was driven by Dianne R. Ahlers, 30, of Clearwater.

She and her two children, Tricia, 1, and Marc, 4, were among those hospitalized. Supt. Carl Johnson of Clearwater identified the students hospitalized as John Behnk, 12, and his brother Leroy, 15, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Behnk; Celine Moser, 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Moser; Mark Thiele, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Thiele; and Rochelle Bolling, 6, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merlin Bolling. All were from Clearwater.

The bus was driven by Jack M. Jones Jr., 38, of Clearwater.

Sgt. Zurcher said the left rear end of the bus rolled over the front of the car and overturned, landing on its wheels. He said the car was destroyed.

Sgt. Zurcher said a shelterbelt blinds the corner and that the sun was setting at the time.

Motor vehicle tax question is clarified

Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas issued an opinion Thursday clarifying what taxes apply to motor vehicles registered as a part of a fleet of interstate commercial vehicles.

The opinion said that because the vehicle in question was purchased in January, 1974, but not registered as part of the fleet until July, it is subject to motor vehicle taxes which apply to the fleet from July to the end of the tax year.

From January to July the vehicle should be subject only to the ad valorem tax on tangible property, the opinion said.

William J. Edwards, deputy director of the Department of Motor Vehicles, requested the opinion.

2nd study of mock hanging expands

Jackson, Miss. (AP) — Gov. Cliff Finch said Thursday he would ask the U.S. Justice Department and the FBI to assist in an investigation into the mock hanging of a black National Guardsman by white Mississippi troops.

The governor said he is asking for their help in an "independent and impartial" investigation he earlier had requested of the National Guard Bureau.

"I am thoroughly saddened by these circumstances which reflect poorly and erroneously on our state and our people," Finch said during a news conference.

He previously had said that an investigation conducted by the Mississippi National Guard indicated that the May 31 mock hanging of Pvt. Dan Briscoe, a Nebraska guardsman, was a "spontaneous prank" without racial overtones.

But he said Thursday he wants an inquiry by an outside agency, with no stake in the outcome, to "go the extra step" to show that Mississippi does not condone such incidents.

He said, "No one feels the National Guard is trying to cover up" and, "Once and for all, let's find out the truth."

The mock hanging occurred as troops of Mississippi and Nebraska were training at Ft. Gordon, Ga.

"In my mind, there is absolutely no excuse for such an incident, even if it were a spontaneous prank," the governor said. "I do not condone anyone... acting in such a manner, regardless of how innocent or ill-advised their thoughts or actions may have been at that time."

He conveyed his regrets to Briscoe "and anyone else who was offended" and said his remarks were intended "as an apology to the world to the extent it has caused the state to be looked at with prejudice."

Winner: Changes could avoid controversy

Lincoln (AP) — Outgoing Nebraska National Guard Adj. Gen. Francis Winner says a full-time investigator in the state National Guards, or federalized state units during summer camp training, might have decreased controversy stemming from a mock hanging incident last May.

Winner, who lost his job effective Jan. 1 because of that controversy, was talking of ways to handle matters such as the Ft. Gordon, Ga., incident when Pvt. Dan Briscoe, a black Nebraska Guardsman, was subjected to a mock hanging by a group of Mississippi Guardsmen.

Controversy stemmed from the belated public exposure and "back burner" investigation by the Guard.

"As it is now," Winner said, "the feds pay the men, monitor their training and provide their equipment, but they're still on state active duty."

He said that if the law were changed to federalize training troops, the federal government would "have to provide some type of protection" for anyone hurt.

Or, Winner said, if the Nebraska Guard had a full-time investigator, he might have handled the Briscoe matter better.

"We have no investigative arm now," Winner said. "Those things are always done by someone who already has another job, and as a result, he often doesn't get it done."

Winner said that until six months ago, he didn't think a full-time investigator was necessary, "but I'm beginning to think so. I guess we could keep him pretty busy."

Winner also touched on the effects of recent state Guard turmoil. An Army team of investigators has started a probe of the state Guard at Gov. J.J. Exon's request.

"I think some questions have been raised about how well our management can respond to anything that isn't business as usual," Winner said.

"I think some people are fearful that the Guard isn't strong enough in a legal sense, the way it's constituted now."

Winner, a West Point graduate and major general, is an attorney.

"People in the Guard worry about public opinion and how resilient the outfit can be in the face of adverse publicity," he said.

"They don't like a bad image, and they think that what they're doing for their state and their country is worth more than they're getting credit for."

2 critics praise Guard inspectors

By Dick Holman
Star Staff Writer

A U.S. Army inspector general's team investigating the Nebraska National Guard has interviewed two vocal critics of the State Military Department and the black private who was a mock hanging victim.

"I feel that they are competent, thorough investigators," said Omaha State Sen. Ernest Chambers. "If there is a bottom to be gotten to, they'll get it."

Former Maj. Robert Van Valkenburg, contesting his ouster this year "for cause," said he was interviewed for 4½ hours.

He said "I am totally convinced as to the sincerity of the people (a three-star general, a black colonel and a lieutenant colonel) who are investigating the Guard. I believe them to be professional military men who have shown to me that their prime mission is the betterment of the Nebraska National Guard."

Van Valkenburg was given an honorable discharge from the Guard, after a hearing charged him with telling a reporter that an investigation of the Guard was pending, when he knew that was untrue, and making false and disrespectful statements about fellow officers.

Both he and Chambers said they weren't at liberty to discuss specifics of their conversations with the Army officers.

Commenting generally, Chambers said they "discussed the 'mock hanging' of Pvt. Dan Briscoe May 31 at Ft. Gordon, Ga., where his Lincoln unit was at annual training with a Mississippi unit."

"To be completely accurate," Chambers noted, "I was just there sort of as counsel to Briscoe and he did all of the talking to them for the record. Off the record (to the investigators), I expressed some opinions I had about the whole thing."

The team indicated they had seen Chambers' investigative report of the mock hanging, the senator said.

Van Valkenburg, who has made far-reaching allegations to Washington of impropriety in Guard conduct and actions, said that when the inspectors report their findings to the secretary of the Army, "the appropriate steps will be taken to do whatever is necessary to make the Nebraska National Guard the outstanding unit that we all want it to be."

The inspectors are required to ensure complete confidentiality in their fact-finding duties. Any citizen, Guardsman or ex-Guardsman may initiate contact with the team by calling the military department, of which the Guard is a part, to discuss any matters, even if seemingly unimportant.

Gov. J. James Exon, who requested the investigation, pointed out two specific areas he wants covered: possible misuse of federal or state funds in use of Guard helicopters July 4; and payment of Beatrice Guardsmen for drill time when absenteeism was indicated but later presumably corrected. However, a spokesman for Exon said the investigation is open-ended, including the mock-hanging incident. The governor requested there be no limitations.

Police chief denies rumors of Nebraska Guard offer

Lincoln Police Chief George Hansen said Thursday that reports he is being considered to head the Nebraska National Guard are "pure rumors" as far as he knows.

Hansen said he has not been contacted about replacing Francis Winner as adjutant general of the guard. Winner resigned that position at the request of Gov. J. James Exon. The resignation is effective Jan. 1.

Asked if he would accept the position if it is offered, Hansen replied, "It's the furthest thing from my mind."

Hansen said he is not sure he is qualified to be adjutant general.

He was appointed police chief in September, 1975. He retired from the U.S. Army as a lieutenant colonel in 1967.

REA loan goes to Burt County Power

Washington (UPI) — A $942,000 loan from the Rural Electrification Administration to the Burt County Public Power District was announced by Rep. Charles Thone.

The rural co-operative with headquarters at Tekamah serves customers in Burt, Colfax, Cumming, Dodge, Thurston and Washington counties.

The loan will make it possible for the co-op to provide service to 113 additional consumers.

The money will be used for 11 miles of transmission lines, 17 miles of distribution lines and various system improvements, Thone said.

Norden landslides still debated

By Jim Camden
Star Staff Writer

Depending on one's definition, either there are landslides in the area of the proposed Norden dam reservoir, or there are no landslides there.

State Geologist Vincent H. Dreeszen testified Thursday against that phenomenon. "I know of no landslides in the reservoir area," he said in U.S. District Court during the 10th day of the trial to stop the project.

Dreeszen, head of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Conservation and Survey Division, was disagreeing with previous testimony about the danger of landslides in the 19-mile stretch of the Niobrara River. Dr. Wilber Rogers, another geologist, had said he observed four landslides within four miles upstream of the proposed dam site.

But Dreeszen said those areas were really just "sluffing" a less serious geological phenomenon in which earth moves.

Shortly before the trial recessed for the day, J. Bruce Teichman, attorney for the Save the Niobrara River Association, asked Dreeszen how familiar he was with landslides.

"Only in a general way," replied Dreeszen, adding that landslides were not that common in Nebraska.

Dreeszen also testified that data collected since the 1930's shows the ground water table is declining in the area near O'Neill that would be irrigated by the $167 million project.

"Ground water levels will decline because it is being drawn more rapidly than precipitation can put it back," Dreeszen said.

The geologist was the second witness for the government in the trial. The first, project director John F. Mayne, said he would not make any significant changes in the environmental impact statement.

On cross examination, Mayne admitted that after 10 years and spending more than $1 million on studies, the bureau doesn't know exactly where the dam and the canals will be located, how much more corn will be grown or cattle will be raised after the project is completed, or what kind of irrigation systems the farmers in the area will be using.

Social Security funds on again for retarded

Associated Press

Nebraska offices of the Social Security Administration Thursday resumed processing applications for Supplemental Security Income benefits to mentally retarded state residents living in community-based quarters.

Nebraska's nine district offices stopped accepting applications in mid-October after Social Security officials said SSI benefits to 773 mentally retarded adults would be reduced or ended.

The federal officials had decided that the recipients lived in institutions and, according to Social Security regulations, were ineligible to get full SSI benefits.

The recipients reside in such state-sponsored community quarters as hostels and supervised apartments.

No decision has been made on a permanent ruling regarding the continuation of payments to the 733 persons.

State officials have argued that the mentally retarded adults are entitled to the benefits because they receive education and training in their living units.

Tehran is only hours away

New York (UPI) — Iran Air winter schedules features the only nonstop commercial flights from New York to Tehran. New 747 SP jetliners fly the 6,194 miles to the Iranian capital in 11 hours 15 minutes twice a week. There are flights via London three times weekly and 707s go to Tehran via Paris and Cairo twice weekly.

Omaha stations back on air

Omaha (UPI) — Omaha radio stations KOIL and KEFM went back on the air Thursday following 3½ months of silence after the Federal Communications Commission found their former owners guilty of political favoritism on the air waves.

Nathan Novak, a prominent Omaha businessman and holder of the temporary licenses for the two stations, flipped the switch at 9 a.m.

Novak shaved off his beard for the occasion, saying "I thought the character of a broadcaster should be different than that of a bearded man."

"And besides," Novak said, "it made me look too old."

Following a statement by Novak, the station played the recent hit song "Welcome Back."

Mayor Robert Cunningham and the Rev. Carl Reinert, Creighton University vice president, made welcoming speeches.

Disc jockey Joe Morgan said, "God bless us all."

Morgan, a former KOIL disc jockey, had misplaced his earphones, but found them 20 seconds to air time.

The stations were formally operated by Star Stations Inc., Omaha, and eight applicants have applied for their permanent licenses.

Novak's Beneficial Broadcasting Inc. will donate the station's profits to charity. Novak said former Omaha Mayor Eugene Leahy has been named to the corporation's board and will help decide which area organizations will share the profits.

Program Director Steve Brown said KOIL would have a "natural contemporary format" combining top 40 rock hits with "oldies" and "naturals" which are new songs the station's staff thinks will be hits.

Novak said KEFM would stick to its "beautiful music" format used by Star Stations.

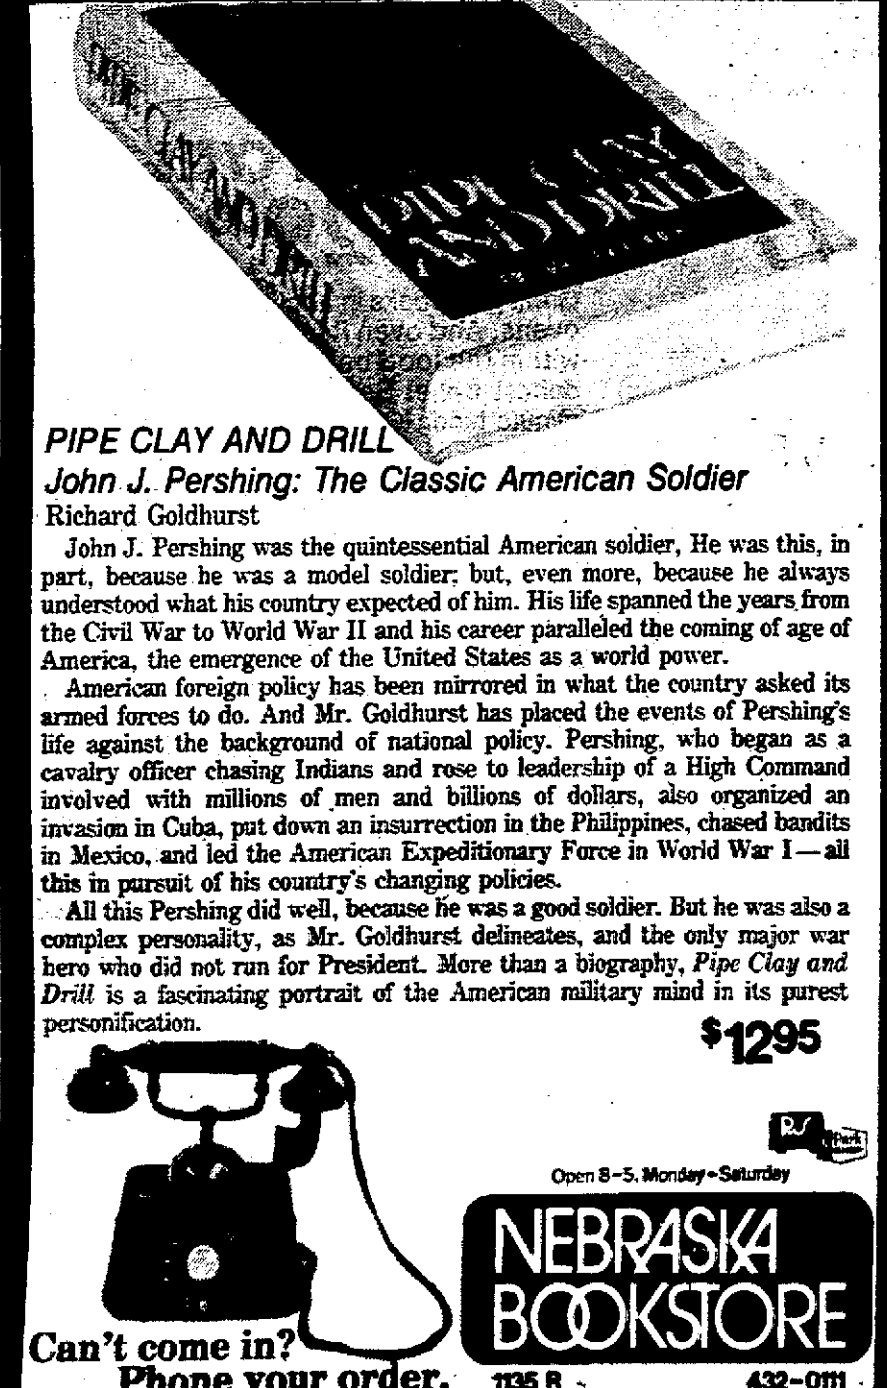

Sam Stewart, former KETV news anchorman, has been named news director. Novak said the stations have 24 full-time employees.

John J. Pershing: The Classic American Soldier
Richard Goldhurst

John J. Pershing was the quintessential American soldier. He was this, in part, because he was a model soldier; but, even more, because he always understood what his country expected of him. His life spanned the years from the Civil War to World War II and his career paralleled the coming of age of America, the emergence of the United States as a world power.

American foreign policy has been mirrored in what the country asked its armed forces to do. And Mr. Goldhurst has placed the events of Pershing's life against the background of national policy. Pershing, who began as a cavalry officer chasing Indians and rose to leadership of a High Command involved with millions of men and billions of dollars, also organized an invasion in Cuba, put down an insurrection in the Philippines, chased bandits in Mexico, and led the American Expeditionary Force in World War I—all in this pursuit of his country's changing policies.

All this Pershing did well, because he was a good soldier. But he was also a complex personality, as Mr. Goldhurst delineates, and the only major war hero who did not run for President. More than a biography, Pipe Clay and Drill is a fascinating portrait of the American military mind in its purest personification.

Zephyr's derailment unexplained; 47 hurt

By Michael Holmes
Star Staff Writer

LaVista — Federal and railroad officials Thursday probed the twisted wreckage of Amtrak's San Francisco Zephyr, but had no immediate explanation for the crash which injured 47 persons.

Six of the train's 11 cars hurtled off the tracks in northern Sarpy County, plunging down a 25-foot embankment. Most injuries were minor, but nine of the 180 persons aboard were hospitalized.

Chief Burlington Northern spokesman James Hagel said by phone from Denver that his railroad was investigating but had found no cause for the pre-dawn crash.

The crash occurred at 2:55 a.m., just minutes before the Zephyr was scheduled to arrive in Omaha.

Several of the derailed cars fell onto their sides, but none completely overturned. Authorities credited that as one reason there weren't more serious injuries.

The train was traveling below the track speed limit and the rails had been inspected a day before, Hagel said.

Officials of Amtrak, the Federal Railroad Administration and others also were investigating late Thursday.

It was the second derailment for the silver Zephyr in as many months. Pulled by BN locomotives on BN track, Thursday's train was en route from Oakland, Calif. to Chicago.

Hagel and an Amtrak spokesman in Washington both quoted the train's engineer as saying he was traveling at 53 m.p.h., just under the 55 m.p.h. limit. A recorder in the engine and other devices confirmed the 53 m.p.h. speed, Hagel said.

He also said the track had been inspected 12 to 18 hours earlier, and that a freight train passed over that same section less than 2½ hours before the derailment.

"Part of that train crew's duty would be to report any irregularities in the track," Hagel said, adding that no such report was made.

Workmen were to have restored the quarter-mile section of ripped track by late Thursday night, officials said.

The Washington Amtrak spokesman said the Thursday morning crash was the second since October.

Once one of the best-known of the Burlington Railroad passenger trains, the San Francisco Zephyr derailed Oct. 18 near Chicago. Forty-three persons were injured in that accident.

The train was carrying 166 passengers and 12 to 15 crewmen Thursday, BN said. An Amtrak spokesman called that "a good load," but not as full as the train could have been.

By late Thursday, most of the uninjured passengers had been flown out of Omaha, said R. D. Batten, an Amtrak official flown to Sarpy County from Chicago.

The 47 injured were taken to Midlands Community Hospital in Papillion and Bergan Mercy Hospital in Omaha. Midlands added nearly a dozen off-duty personnel to its emergency room staff, while Bergan Mercy treated 11 of the more seriously injured passengers.

Among those hospitalized were Lincolinites Mrs. Rusty Lefebvre, 37, of 4111 Selleck Quadrangle, listed in good condition, and train crewman Robert Weckman, 60, of 2335 N. 61st, who was listed in satisfactory condition.

Authorities expressed relief that most of the injuries were cuts and bruises. And both hospitals praised the volunteer ambulance crews of Millard, Ralston, Papillion and LaVista for transporting the injured.

As workmen were trying to clear the Amtrak derailment, an Illinois Central locomotive and three cars derailed in East Omaha, near the Omaha Marina. No one was injured in that accident, which occurred about six hours after the Amtrak crash.

Repair crews work near tipped over cars.

Train riders recall noises, 'terrific jolt'

By Michael Holmes
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Papillion — It was cold, dark and many San Francisco Zephyr passengers were sleeping when their train derailed and dove off a 20-foot embankment.

Shaken, many passengers later said they had little or no recollection of the crash.

Others said they remembered only "awful noises" and a "terrific jolt" before the silver cars fell on their sides.

Some passengers were trapped while others, their cars remaining nearly upright, were able to walk and crawl to the outside.

Flew Through Air

"All I know is I was sitting there one minute and flying through the air the next," said conductor R. W. Mitchell of Lincoln. "Things were flying."

Mitchell, who was sitting near the middle of the train when the derailment occurred, said, "It bumped around a lot before we hit the ditch."

Wearing an orange button which read, "See the Country — Travel Amtrak," the 35-year railroad veteran said this was his first crash.

Mrs. Paul Young, also of Lincoln, said she hadn't gone to sleep when the train derailed.

"First we heard this noise. Then my husband said, 'Brace yourself, honey. Brace yourself.' I did," she said.

Car On Side

Mrs. Young said the next thing she realized, "The car was on its side and there was this terrible noise." The couple had been traveling to New Jersey to visit their son.

Uninjured passengers were taken to the Sarpy County Courthouse, which was littered with blankets, coffee cups, clothing and some luggage as Coloradoan Richard Engelke described his experience.

"There was an awful jolt. And a really loud noise. Then the train just stopped. I knew there was something wrong."

"I was trying to dose off," said William Morabec of Utica, who boarded the train in Lincoln.

'Train Began to Buck'

"The train began to buck," he said, "and it looked like we were in some rough territory. I can't tell you any more than that. I had a lot of things on my mind."

Peru State College professor Gilbert Wilson, who had been traveling to a music instructors' convention in Chicago, said he usually boarded the train in Omaha, but this time decided to try Lincoln instead.

"I was half asleep. The train lifted up. We got bounced around. The cars behind us went off," he said.

Lying on the floor as he spoke, 14-year-old Robert

Cassara of Sacramento, Calif., said the train was "going back and forth. Then — all of a sudden — it fell off the tracks."

His mother was hurt, Cassara said, "but we couldn't get out. There was stuff piled in front of the door and we couldn't get it open. Finally somebody came and we got out."

Sitting in a courthouse hallway, passenger Alfred Manley of Livermore, Calif., petted a pair of poodles.

Usually Flies

A "Tracks Are Best" button pinned to his stocking cap, Manley said he usually flies when taking vacation trips. But "We decided to try the train this year," taking the two dogs with them.

After the crash, he said rescue and railroad officials would not let him into the baggage car to get the dogs. "I went in anyway. I wasn't gonna leave them in there," he said.

Railroad officials and law enforcement officers, surveying the wrecked train at daybreak Thursday, said the passengers were lucky. "I'll tell you this," one Amtrak official said. "It could've been a lot worse... a lot worse."

Two businessmen accused of tax violations

Omaha (UPI) — Two outstate Nebraska businessmen were indicted by a federal grand jury Thursday on charges of violating the Internal Revenue Code.

The grand jury charged Jerry F. Spady of Hastings with four counts of income tax evasion for the years 1971 and 1972 on both his individual and corporate tax returns, while Andrew J.

Leadabrand of Greenwood was charged with two counts of evading his personal income taxes.

The grand jury alleged Spady reported an individual tax liability of $1,405 during the two-year period when he should have reported an additional liability of $3,581.

In his corporate taxes, the grand jury alleged Spady reported a $3,634 tax liability for Jerry F. Spady Pontiac-Cadillac Inc., Hastings, when he should have reported an additional liability of $11,208 during the two-year period.

Leadabrand, a farm implement dealer in Greenwood, was charged with reporting a $1,713 personal income with no tax liability in 1970 when he should have reported a taxable income of $23,828 with a $4,154 tax liability.

In 1971, the grand jury alleged Leadabrand reported he owed $349 in federal taxes when it should have been a $15,401 tax liability on an income that year of $64,414.

In other tax matters Thursday, Randall L. Domino of Omaha pleaded no contest to charges of failing to file income tax returns for 1972 and 1973.

U.S. District Judge Albert G. Schatz deferred sentencing.

Donor offers to match band fund

An anonymous donor is helping the University of Nebraska Marching Band's Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl trip fund drive by offering to match all contributions up to $20,000.

As of Thursday, the amount contributed totalled $13,424 and the public fund drive to raise the matching $20,000 will continue through Monday, according to Chancellor Roy A. Young. The band's goal is $40,000.

The total to date includes nearly $3,000 excess raised last year, said Ed Hirsch of the University of Nebraska Foundation. Last year's band drive brought in $57,000; $52,068 was spent on the band trip and nearly $2,500 was spent on the band drive and to replace instruments.

Young added that if more funds are donated than are needed, they will be held by the foundation for use by the band.

Contributions to the drive should be sent to Band Fund, University of Nebraska Foundation, Box 30186, Lincoln, 68503.

Funds granted

Kansas City — Nebraska will receive about $5.4 million in federal funds to continue public employment programs. The Labor Department said Lincoln will get $454,000, the Omaha area nearly $2.7 million and the balance of Nebraska about $2.3 million.

Executive sentenced

Omaha — Grant L. Mathey, a former Omaha advertising executive, was sentenced Thursday to two years probation and a $1,000 fine on one count of filing a false federal income tax return. Mathey, 41, appeared in U.S. District Court before Judge Robert Denney and entered a plea of guilty to one count of a three-count indictment charging him with filing false federal income tax returns for the years 1972, 1973 and 1974.

Nebraskan not injured

Rainier, Ore. — A semi-truck carrying a load of 120 cattle left a road late Wednesday, killing 17 of the cattle and injuring most of the rest, the state police reported. The driver of the truck, Ronald W. Pulis, of O'Neill, was not injured. The cattle had just been sold by Oregon State Rep. Dick Magruder of Clatskanie.

Eight arrested

Hastings — The Adams County sheriff's department and Hastings police ended a three-month drug investigation Wednesday night with the arrest of eight persons.

Sheriff's department officials said they will be charged with sale of a controlled substance. The eight, who ranged in age from 15 to 26, were all from Hastings.

Hope's wife elected

Handicapped rap Omaha bus policy

Omaha (AP) — About 15 sign-carrying demonstrators Thursday urged Metro Area Transit to bring Omaha bus service for the handicapped up to the level provided in Lincoln.

The demonstrators, including former State Sen. David Stahmer, also attacked MAT for failing to install an elevator at MAT headquarters which Stahmer said was promised a year ago.

Seeing the demonstrators, MAT Executive Director Jerome Erdman moved a MAT board of directors meeting from a basement room to his office on the main floor. The move prevented the demonstrators from having to walk down steps, an architectural barrier to persons in wheelchairs.

Rose Hoover, who is confined to a wheelchair and a member of the Mayor's Committee on the Handicapped, said Lincoln allows handicapped persons of all ages to ride in wheelchair-equipped vans, while in Omaha such vans are restricted to persons over 60 or mentally retarded.

Erdman said MAT is expected to get 10 vans next year that all handicapped could use.

After about 20 minutes of trading accusations, the board cut off the discussion.

Downtown bus loop hearing set Feb. 16

The downtown bus loop system, controversial since it first began several months ago, will be an open target during a Feb. 16 public hearing.

Both opponents and proponents of the new bus route for the downtown area will have a chance to give opinions to the Lincoln Transportation System Board during a 7:30 p.m. meeting in the City Council chambers.

The loop system eliminated part of the stops along O St. while bringing bus service closer to the University of Nebraska campus and the new state office building.

In an effort to assure that employees of the O St. businesses affected by the bus route change will be able to attend, the LTS Board decided to hold the public hearing on a night when the downtown stores will be closed.

However, by trying to avoid the Monday and Thursday evening shopping hours, the board scheduled the hearing on a night when there is no bus service available for riders to get downtown and to the hearing.

Female Santa must turn in suit, beard

Omaha (AP) — Melody Moore got fired from her job as Santa Claus because she was a woman.

"You just can't afford to disillusion a child," said Brandeis store manager Robert Patterson.

Miss Moore quoted a store representative as saying parents complained because, they said, "it ruined the image of Santa Claus."

"They fired me because I'm female and that's discrimination," Miss Moore, 20, said. She had received $2.40-an-hour as a back-up Santa.

Miss Moore had played Santa about six times before being asked to turn in her red suit and white beard. She believed she was doing a good job.

"I was taking it seriously. When the kids would come up to me, they'd say what they wanted or whisper it in my ear. I'd ask them if they had been good during the year, and I talked to their parents. I even ho-ho-hoed a couple of times."

Patterson said five complaining parents told him, in effect, that their children had sat on Melody's lap, spilled out their hearts, then come back to their parents saying, "That's not Santa Claus, that's a lady."

Trees out for holiday

Chadron (AP) — If you live in Chadron or nearby Gordon, you're out of luck if you're shopping now for a Christmas tree.

The last one at commercial outlets in both communities was sold Tuesday and retailers say they can't get any more.

"I don't know what it is," reports John Wallace, a grocery store manager who says there has been an unexplained rush on natural trees this season.

Larry Ring reports his store sold 300 trees this year, a 50% increase over last year.

The trees come from a farm at Torrington, Wyo., and the retailers say tree-hunters might be able to cut some there.

Money closes YWCA

Omaha (AP) — The YWCA here is locking up one center and selling its headquarters because of financial problems, it was announced Thursday.

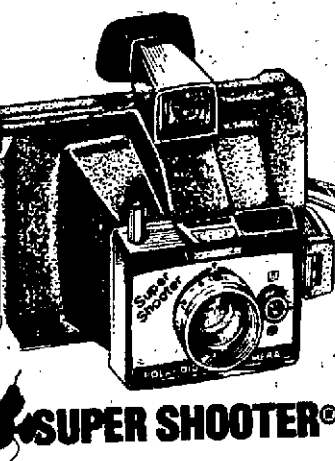

Robin Waller Abrams of the YWCA board said the staff will occupy rented offices in an undetermined location. She said programs conducted at the Tubman Center in north Omaha will be run out of other centers in the neighborhood.

Mrs. Abrams said the YWCA has tapped its endowment fund about $40,000-a-year the past four years so it's nearly depleted.

At 86, she is still teaching swimming

Hastings (AP) — Edith Hurlbut, going on 86, braves the Nebraska winter chill two days a week for her four-block stroll to her volunteer job at the YMCA. She is a swimming and lifesaving instructor.

"Swimming is the best darn fun there is," she says, adding that she wants to be called "just Edith."

Gordon Metzger, the Y's director, calls her an institution.

"I just don't see how anyone could have an older and more active institution on the staff," he says, guessing that she may be the oldest swim teacher in the country. "She's still so sharp and has things completely under control."

Mrs. Hurlbut, a widow who moved to Hastings four years ago, says she was swimming in the Y's pool one day when "they saw me . . . and asked me if I'd teach one of the Y secretaries to swim."

She has been a volunteer swimming teacher at the YMCA since but a swimmer long before that.

"I don't count just paddlin' around," she said, "I was a girl from the 'show me' state (Missouri) and didn't learn to really swim until about 1920. That's when I learned to swim properly."

She polished her skills at lifesaving institutes around the country, including a 1928 class at Lake Taneycomo, Mo., and a 1946 session at an institute in Como Springs, Utah. "I never competed," she adds. "I don't care about speed. I always am more concerned with lifesaving."

Edith says she had taught over 1,100 people to swim when she quit counting.

"All I know is that some of my old students have grandkids that I taught," she says. Her husband's railroad job took her to such places as Casper and Greybull, Wyo. and various Nebraska cities.

Edith credits swimming for her longevity, although she says "it hasn't kept me slim like it used to."

She no longer ice or roller skates, skies, horseback rides or dances tap because "I think too much of my old bones."

"You are never too old to learn to swim," she says. "Tell senior citizens that if they don't know how and really want some fun, they ought to start learning."

Mrs. Hurlbut says 'swimming is the best darn fun.'

Separate accidents fatal to 3

By The Associated Press

Three persons died in two separate traffic accidents Wednesday in Nebraska.

John E. Leaver, 68, was killed when his pickup truck was struck from behind on a rural road near Alvo in Cass County, according to the State Patrol.

The driver of the other truck was identified as Ronaldo Lecuna, 22, of Omaha. He was treated for minor injuries and released.

Two persons were killed in a car-truck collision at a county road intersection southwest of Unadilla, also in southeast Nebraska.

Authorities identified the victims as Emil Lemmon, 66, and his 63-year-old wife Doris of Omaha.

Two other occupants of the car were injured and hospitalized in Lincoln, one in critical condition.

Nebraska State Patrolman Mike Streeter said the west-bound truck driven by Eugene Lechner of Syracuse struck the southbound car broadside.

Officers seize goods believed stolen

Papillion (AP) — The Sarpy County Sheriff's Dept seized a three-ton load of goods Wednesday, all believed to have been taken from homes that Larry James Schultz, also known as A. R. Jones, allegedly bought, then rented and looted in this area last summer.

The 6,300-pound semi-trailer loaded with goods was brought in from Lincoln Wednesday after being seized from a rented storage locker in south Lincoln.

Lincoln police officers stood by as Sarpy County authorities seized the trailer. However, apparently none of the goods had been taken from homes in Lincoln or Lancaster County. The load included two refrigerators filled with food. They had been plugged in during their stay in the locker.

Sarpy County Sheriff Pat Thomas said it was one of three warehouses that Schultz is believed to have in the Midwest.

Schultz is in jail in Chicago, said George Roberts of the Sarpy County Attorney's office. He is also sought here on three counts charging him with obtaining money under false pretenses in the taking of $1,400 from a woman for rent, deposit and furniture.

It was charged that Schultz, using a phony firm name, was placing small amounts of earnest money down to purchase homes. He then would rent them, take the appliances and sometimes the fixtures and vanish.

Roberts said there may be 14 or more similar cases, judging from the goods seized in Lincoln.

Roberts said Sarpy County authorities were told Schultz is in the Metropolitan Correctional Center in Chicago after being arrested several weeks ago in South Bend, Ind.

From information developed there, Thomas and Roberts said, officers learned of the Lincoln locker.

Schultz has requested that officials here consider dropping any charges. He claimed he already was scheduled for jail terms totaling more than 10 years for income tax violations, fraud and failure to appear to serve a Los Angeles sentence, authorities said.

In addition, he wrote, there was a "definite possibility" of other charges from Illinois, California and New Mexico.

Douglas County has two charges against Schultz and has placed a hold on him.

He is thought to have netted from $10,000 to $15,000 in little more than two months in the area, Thomas and Roberts said.

One of pilots in air crash is Nebraskan

Lubbock, Tex. (AP) — Lt. Phillip Randall Jones, of Minden, La., was identified Thursday as the pilot who died Tuesday when two training jets from Reese Air Force Base in this West Texas city collided in flight.

A Reese AFB spokesman said three of the four men aboard the planes parachuted, but one of them, Lt. Robert Jones of Las Cruces, N.M., was reported in critical condition.

The other two pilots were identified as Capt. James P. Crumley, 32, of New Orleans, and Lt. Dennis E. Maple, 25, of Neligh, Neb.

The air base spokesman said an investigation is being conducted into the collision.

The two planes were part of a four-plane formation training over West Texas.

People injured in Omaha fire

Omaha (AP) — Two persons were taken to a hospital for treatment of possible smoke inhalation following a three-alarm fire at a high-rise apartment building in downtown Omaha early Thursday, officials said.

Firemen said the blaze broke out on the eighth floor of the Palms apartments and was reported by an occupant of the building who is confined to a wheelchair.

The cause and extent of the blaze, which was brought under control about 4:30 a.m., were not immediately known.

Expansion planned by Bible college

Omaha (AP) — Grace College of the Bible has contracted to buy St. Catherine's Hospital Center for Continuing Care for $300,000, College President Robert W. Benton said Thursday.

The college also plans to buy KROA-FM radio station in Grand Island for $275,000 subject to approval by the Federal Communications Commission. Grace College will start a drive to raise $1 million in and around Omaha early next year to finance the purchases and provide support for the school's general fund.

Dr. Benton said it will be the first time the college has sought financial aid from the local business community.

St. Catherine's Center includes 153,782 square feet of floor space on about 2 1/2 acres of land and is located a block north of the college. Benton said the center will be converted to dormitories for 150 students, offices, possibly classrooms and will house the college print shop and mail room. The purchase also includes an 80-car parking lot.

The project will require some renovation, and he said, part of the center may be demolished if it does not meet the college's needs.

The property is to be acquired by July 1977, and St. Catherine's will occupy an addition being constructed at Bergan Mercy Hospital.

Grace College owns and operates a noncommercial radio station, KGBI-FM in Omaha. The Grand Island station will permit the college to extend its broadcasts to a larger part of Nebraska, the president said.

Failing motel triples business with movies

Omaha (AP) — Business has tripled at the San Antonio Inn since X-rated movies were introduced three months ago. Edward Horne, president of the Houston-based chain that operates the motel on Omaha's west side, said the unit has become profitable since it was purchased after a foreclosure.

Horne said he wasn't surprised because the chain has had the same experience at its other motels. Horne said the occupancy rate in some instances in the chain is 130%.

He said that is because rooms are rented at half-day rates and some are used twice in a day.

Horne said the company won't rent a room to persons with children unless they agree to prevent the children from seeing the films.

Fairbury kindergartner dies from variety of meningitis

Fairbury — The death of a five-year-old kindergartner, Tony Cerny, has been blamed on a type of meningitis.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Cerny of Fairbury died Wednesday in Lincoln General Hospital.

Dr. Frank Falloon, who treated the youngster and who also is Fairbury city physician, said the boy had "a type of meningitis which ordinarily is not highly contagious." There is no reason to fear an epidemic, he said.

However, he noted that the disease also was diagnosed in the child's brother, Jason, 2. He is now "completely recovered."

The physician said the younger boy was transferred to the Lincoln hospital Dec. 5 and his brother five days later.

Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Saturday at Fairbury United Methodist Church. Other survivors include a sister, Ann.

Room service on the program

Helsinki, Finland (UPI) — All new electric and diesel trains on Finland's state railway system have initiated room service for Pullman cars on long-distance runs. Young hostesses serve the food and other orders.

Market ends string of gains Closing prices on N. Y. stocks

New York (AP) — Profit taking and oil-price uncertainties pushed stock prices into a moderate decline Thursday, ending a string of six consecutive gains.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which had climbed more than 20 points in the six previous trading days to a 2 1/2-month high, slipped 2.49 to 981.30.

Losers outpaced gainers by about a 4-3 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts noted that the market had been bucking resistance from profit takers for the past few days.

They said that that pressure seemed to intensify early Thursday as investors took a fresh look at the oil-price outlook.

Hog prices turn higher

Omaha (AP) — The hog market was active Thursday with barrows and gilts selling $1 to $1.50 higher and sows ranging from 50 to 75 cents higher, instances $1.00 up.

There was little activity on the fed steer and cattle market and no sheep were offered.

The cattle and calf market offerings totaled 600, but there were not enough steers and heifers to afford a reliable market test. Scattered sales were steady. A few part loads choice 1,025-1,175 pound steers brought $39.00-$40.00.

Sheep, none. Estimated receipts for Friday: 2,800 cattle and calves 2,800; hogs 4,000; sheep, none.

Charities playing on guilt

New York — I wish that charities would pick another time of year to ask for money. Just as I get to wondering how to pay for Christmas, the mail swells with fund-raising appeals and a neighbor calls for my annual check to the United Way.

Please, fellas. The spirit is willing, but the bank balance is weak.

On my annual budget calendar, certain months always flash red April for taxes August for a summer vacation. September, when once again the children miraculously outgrow all their clothes. And, of course, December.

Charities make their appeals this time of year because we're all supposed to be suffused with a special generosity. When the money tap has been turned on, everybody brings a bucket. But, personally, I think just as well of my fellow man in October or June, and I'm a lot more likely to have ready cash. Here's one vote for fund-raisers who bring their cause to my attention at a less expensive time of year.

But I suppose it's not just the spirit of Christmas giving that brings the charities out. It's the spirit of Christmas guilt.

In a season when people are trying hard to make those close to them feel happy, they are particularly vulnerable to reminders of the hardships of others.

To be handed a picture of a starving child at the very moment when your children are preparing to stuff themselves with goose and chestnuts is a sure-fire way to shake loose a little cash.

In fact, I've noticed that my Christmas mails are particularly filled with appeals from "children's charities" — letter after letter featuring sad-faced youngsters pleading with well-fed Americans for help. Looking at those pictures is a real tug on the maternal heart, especially when you're worrying whether maybe your own children are being overindulged.

It's a shameless manipulation, it often works; and I resent it. The unspoken accusation is, "How dare you enjoy Christmas when these children can't?" And as the guilt rises, the charity offers fast, fast, fast relief. "Give us a few dollars and feel good again."

It's fine for a charity to say, "You have so much, share with others less fortunate." That's a straight-forward statement, dealing with a legitimate concern. But when the message subliminally suggests that if you don't give you're heartlessly letting others suffer, I throw the letter out.

I wish that everyone else would do the same thing. Throw out every appeal that plays heavily on your guilt — the pictures of hopeful children, the unsolicited gifts, the subtle suggestions that world poverty is probably your fault, so it's up to you to correct it. If we refuse en masse to be manipulated this way, the charity industry would have to try something else.

Another thing that bothers me about pathetic-children brochures: The ones I have all show children from other countries. The basic appeal is that these are people locked in a chain of poverty, but with our help, they can be set free.

When that same plea is made on behalf of the children of Harlem, of migrant workers, of the Kentucky hills, a lot of "charitable givers" rise up in wrath. When the children are yellow or brown, they're poor unfortunates in need of help; when they're American whites or blacks, they're shiftless bums and a danger to the community.

Many good people will send $25 to CARE'S Holiday Food Crusade for children overseas, yet vote to cut needy American families off food stamps.

Some of the international "children charities" do have projects in the United States, as well as in India, Korea, Sierra Leone and other points east and south. But these are rarely emphasized in their brochures.

LHS girls win ragged game

By Chuck Sinclair
Prep Sports Writer

Bill Myers had to be happy that his Lincoln High girls basketball team was able to come from behind and grasp a 43-37 overtime triumph over Papillion at Johnson Gym Thursday night... but most of his elation ended with the fact that the Links won.

In light of 66 total turnovers, 33 by each team, neither Myers or Papillion coach Jim Glover could find many positive aspects of the game witnessed by 193 spectators.

"That just pretty well sums up the effort," Myers said about the win as opposed to the ragged play. "We just didn't come out here ready to play tonight, and they did."

"We just blew it," Glover commented. "We had them and we lost our cool. Lincoln High is good, but I don't think their personnel is as good as ours."

The visiting Monarchs had the chance to put the Links on ice when they took the lead for the first time on Jackie Nixon's driving lay up with 1:27 left in regulation.

That capped six straight points from Papillion to come from four points down in less than two minutes.

Then with 1:19 left, Nixon stole the ball at midcourt from Deb Van Dusen, giving Papio the ball and the lead. Glover promptly motioned for a timeout.

Just as promptly, Lisa Hansen was called for traveling after the ensuing inbounds pass and the Links regained possession.

Working the ball downcourt, LHS guard Tedy Bowling shoveled a pass off inside to Rachel Hillman for the tying basket with :50 remaining.

An eight-foot turnaround shot by Kelly Dickens :15 later put Papillion back on top, 37-35, and the Links were once again in danger.

But Bowling got open for a 12-footer with :11 seconds left to force the overtime and a final shot by Kim Grinstead missed with one second left.

Van Dusen connected on four of four free throws during the overtime and Hillman added another lay-up as the Links' defense stiffened and held Papio scoreless.

The key play to dampen the Monarch's chances in the extra period came when Kim Mostek fouled out trying to get the ball from Van Dusen.

"That really hurt us," Glover said. "When Kim went out, it just killed us. She definitely controls our offensive pattern."

Both Glover and Myers remain optimistic about their chances in the upcoming holiday tournament at Papillion, Dec. 28-30, the next action for both teams.

"We'll practice a little more against the press before then," said Myers who admitted that Papillion's full court press caused some problems. "This was a tough one. We did have some good efforts though. Robin Giner played well inside and Liz Mannix rebounded well."

Lincoln High, at 4-0, will be one of three unbeaten teams in the holiday meet along with East (2-0) and Millard (4-0). Papio, with losses to the Links and Millard, will enter with a 2-2 mark.

Weather no recruiting key

By Virgil Parker
Sports Editor

On a balmy, almost springlike day Thursday, the first full-scale workout for the Nebraska football team since the Hawaii game and recruiting got the divided attention of Cornhusker coach Tom Osborne.

Does the unseasonal weather make it easier to recruit prospects from warmer climate areas?

"We have several kids in from Texas right now and three or four coming from California this weekend," Osborne said in answer.

"But, interestingly enough, we've had some of our best recruiting weekends when the weather was at its worst," the NU coach added.

Osborne told of the time Bob Newton, who became an outstanding offensive lineman and later played for the Chicago Bears, arrived from California.

"He was one of the first junior college players we ever recruited," Osborne recalled. "He got off the plane with just a T-shirt on. It was zero outside. He was blue before he got to the terminal."

"I thought to myself," Osborne continued, "We'll never get him to stay here. Funny thing, though, there were three from California visiting that weekend and they all became good players for us."

Osborne expressed pleasure over Thursday's workout, "but we aren't yet working on a specific plan for Texas Tech yet. We're still groping a little. We've been on the road (recruiting) so much, it'll be next week before we get down to the specifics."

Osborne said final exams, which the players face later in the week, are also occupying the thoughts of the players.

"If they were real sharp the first day out, we'd be worried. But, the attitude of the team seems very good."

I-back Monte Anthony was the only player missing from Thursday's drill. He has been confined to the student health center after suffering a case of walking pneumonia.

In related football news, NU athletic director Bob Devaney revealed Thursday morning that the top 75 football universities in the nation will meet in Dallas next Monday to map out a battle plan for January's NCAA meetings.

At the NCAA convention a year ago, an attempt was made to form a special division — with its own rules for recruiting, number of scholarships, size of coaching staffs, etc. — for the bigger football schools. The resolution was defeated.

"There are some schools in our division with stadiums that hold 12,000 fans and they only draw about 8,000 to a game," Devaney said. "Yet they want us and Notre Dame, USC, Oklahoma and the other schools who finance their entire athletic program with the profit from football, to live by the same set of rules."

"It's like telling you, if you make a lot more money than Mr. Smith down the street, being told that you've got to live in the same size house as he does."

Devaney said that if the NCAA doesn't want to "come around" and form a division for the 80-or-so bigger football powers, those schools may be forced to leave the NCAA and form their own league.

"I don't know if it will actually come to that," Devaney admits. "We hope to force the NCAA to take a better look at the situation."

Iowa State wins again

Ames, Iowa (AP) — Reserve John Tillo led Iowa State with 13 points Thursday night as the Cyclones defeated Arizona State 79-65 to equal last season's entire victory total.

It was the first meeting between the two teams as Iowa State went 3-2 under new Coach Lynn Nance.

Iowa State reeled off the first 10 points of the ballgame, and the Sun Devils never recovered. Arizona State shot just 27 per cent from the field in the first half, as Iowa State led by 10 five times during the period and led 37-29 at intermission.

Tillo hit two quick baskets and a free throw early in the second half as Iowa State raced to a 16-point lead midway through the period and led by as much as 18 points with three minutes to play.

Tillo's 13 points — including nine of 11 free throws — paced the Cyclones, and Andrew Parker and Chuck Harmonson added 12 apiece.

The expected confrontation between the Landsberger brothers never materialized.

Nebraska stops UNO, 62-56

Omaha — Forced outside because of a zone defense, the University of Nebraska women's basketball team responded with a 62-56 win here Thursday over UNO.

The Huskers hit 26 of 74 field goal attempts for a 35 per cent mark, and held the UNO women to just 15 of 34, a healthy percentage, but fewer than half the shots.

"We played very well defensively," said NU coach George Nicodemus. "They stayed in a 2-1-2 zone defense the whole game, forcing us outside. We shot pretty well in the first half (41 per cent) but they kept the game close with free throws."

he said. The UNO team hit 26 of 38 shots from the line, with Niece Jochims doing the most damage, hitting 13 of 16.

Jochims scored 22 of her game-high 27 points in the first half on six field goals and 10 consecutive free throws.

Leading the Husker scoring, Sherry Brink had 17, Jan Cherry got 14, Kathy Hawkins had 11 and Marta Pritchard contributed 10. Hawkins was credited with 17 assists, while Brink and Jeanne Boller led the rebounding statistics with 10 carsoms each.

Nebraska, now 11-5, will meet Missouri-St. Louis in the first round of the Northwest Missouri Invitational Jan. 5 in Maryville, Mo.

Baltimore obligated

Baltimore (UPI) — For the sake of the women and children of Maryland, the Colts are obligated to win Sunday's playoff contest against the Pittsburgh Steelers, according to local psychiatrists and psychologists.

"After the team wins the big game, the fan becomes more grateful, appreciative and generous," said psychologist Stephen Berman. "It's fantastic ventilation."

"He'll want to take the whole family out to dinner or insist that his wife buy the new dress she has been wanting to get for a year," Berman added. "In the fan's mind, he has just achieved a great victory."

But then as Dr. Wolfe Adler, a psychiatrist, points out, a loss can make a bear out of the fan.

"Of course the opposite is true when the team loses," Adler said. "The fan becomes irritable and experiences a rather intense demoralization. He feels cheated."

"Let's hope for the sake of the emotional health of Baltimore families that Pittsburgh loses Sunday."

Specialists call the fan's identity with a football player "an extension of the self." The fan is seeking excitement and fame through his daydreams in which he is actually Bert Jones calling the plays or Lydell Mitchell running his 1,000th yard.

"We identify with the football hero," said psychiatrist Addison W. Pope. "Usually we identify with the powerful, bone-crushing player like a Larry Csonka. With the uniforms and helmets, that's as close as we'll get to the gladiators or the knights of old."

Berman said that even a television interview with Joe Ehrmann or Roosevelt Leaks "creates an air of importance and the fan becomes part of parcel of the team."

"The common man, even if he is a successful doctor, lawyer or businessman, never gets into the limelight."

Meanwhile, fans at Sunday's game are cautioned against getting carried away and displaying the feelings of the front four on the defense.

Adler explained that because many people find their own jobs routine and boring, "we identify with the performers to the extent that the fan in the stands gets his juices going as much as the player on the field."

State's Attorney William Swisher, who prosecuted and won maximum fines for 10 exuberant fans during the last home game, said the police have beefed up their patrols for the stadium.

Swisher said violations of park rules, such as going onto the playing field or disobeying stadium personnel, usually result in a $50 fine. Heavier penalties can be secured for disorderly conduct, which includes using profane language and assault.

Michigan State on probation

Chicago (UPI) — Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke Thursday placed Michigan State's football program on three years probation, barring the Spartans from playing in any postseason or televised contests until Sept. 1, 1979 because of recruiting and financial aid violations.

The penalty conformed to a three-year NCAA probation placed on MSU early this year, but it extended the date ending the NCAA probation from Jan. 18, 1979 until Sept. 1.

At a news conference, Duke said the penalty was proposed by the university in the form of a "remedial action." He said the school had agreed that if further "significant" violations occur during the probation period, the probation will be extended until Sept. 1, 1981, and the school will lose an estimated $350,000 per year in television revenue.

Oklahoma solid Big 8 cage darkhorse

Editor's Note: This is the fourth in a seven-part series on Big Eight basketball teams.

By Mark Gordon
Staff Sports Writer

Label Oklahoma as the darkhorse in this season's Big Eight basketball chase.

A late-season surge earned the Sooners a fourth-place tie with Kansas with, perhaps, one of the youngest teams ever in Big Eight play. That also earned coach Dave Bliss league coach-of-the-year laurels.

This year, some promising newcomers with returning veterans have given Oklahoma its most potential in years. Bliss, however, is keeping that optimism in perspective.

"We are hopeful of continuing the improvement that was evident during the final 10 games last year," he said. "Realistically, we are still a couple of years away from being the team that we hope to be, yet it is our objective this season to play a more exciting brand of basketball with each game."

He's obviously succeeded if the nonconference results are any indication. The Sooners are undefeated in five games, with victories over Tulsa, Texas, Oklahoma City, St. Louis and Drake.

Sophomores — John McCullough and Cary Carrabine and senior Eddie Fields have been impressive in the five triumphs.

McCullough, a 6-4 guard-forward, scored 18 points against Texas, 16 against Drake and 15 against St. Louis. He scored 10 points in each league game against Nebraska a year ago.

Carrabine, a lanky 6-3 guard, may be OU's finest pure shooter. He tallied 22 points in the 60-56 win at Texas and 23 points in OU's 65-60 win over the Huskers last year at Norman.

Fields, a 5-9 guard, has given the Sooners a leadership and ball-handling prowess over the past three seasons. The captain and most valuable player for last year's Sooners, he tallied a career-high 18 points against Oklahoma City and 17 against St. Louis.

Eddie Fields

... OU guard

Rick McNeil, 6-7 senior forward, was the highest scoring center (although in OU's offense he often played outside) in the league last year in conference games (16.2 points-per-game).

The Sooners will go with a high-low post offense with three freshmen expected to play major roles. Drew Head (a 6-10 product from Wheat Ridge, Colo.) will team with either 6-4 Al Beal (from Deerfield, Fla.) or 6-7 Clifford Johnson (from Jacksonville, Fla.)

Billy Graham, a 6-4 junior forward and Terry Stotts, an all-star from Bloomington, Ind., will also see considerable action.

This is only Bliss' second year at Oklahoma after serving as an assistant to Bobby Knight at Indiana. The Sooners were 6-8 in league play a year ago after struggling through a 3-9 nonconference slate.

"I'm not aware how young other teams are," Bliss noted. "But I do know this is as young a team as I want to coach."

"If we can battle together, we can have a good season. How good will depend on how hard they work," he added.

NE downs Fremont

Fremont — Northeast senior Pam Samuelsen fired in 22 points to pep the Rockets to a 58-31 win here Thursday night over Fremont.

Samuelsen, shooting mostly from outside, hit 11 field goals for her total. She was aided by juniors Kathy Moore and Terri Amend with eight and seven, respectively.

"We slapped a man-to-man defense on them, and I think it confused them," said LNE coach Hank Willemsen. "In that second quarter, we really broke it open when Pam hit eight points and Cindy (Sazama) got all six of hers."

Willemsen credited Moore and Amend with help on the boards. LNE, now 1-1, will host Millard on Jan. 6.

Nebraska, now 11-5, will more runs batted in for the past 10 seasons.

Perez, described by New York Mets pitcher Tom Seaver as "the best mistake hitter in baseball," hit .280 with 19 home runs and 91 RBI. He owns a career batting average of .283.

The Reds were unable to trade the popular Perez at last week's winter meetings.

Reds trade Tony Perez

Cincinnati (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds traded veteran slugger Tony Perez, their all-time runs batted in leader, and left-handed relief pitcher Will McEnaney to the Montreal Expos Thursday in exchange for pitchers Woodie Fryman and Dale Murray.

Perez, 34, drove in 1,115 runs during his 12 years with the Reds and is the only active player to have reached 90 or more runs batted in for the past 10 seasons.

The Reds were unable to trade the popular Perez at last week's winter meetings.

Former Huskers meet in playoffs

Bloomington, Minn. (AP) — Center Mick Tingelhoff of the Minnesota Vikings expects to bump into two old college friends Saturday when the Vikings meet the Washington Redskins in the opening round of the National Football Conference playoffs.

On the opposite line of scrimmage from the 36-year-old Tingelhoff will be safety Pat Fischer and defensive end Ron McDole of the Redskins. The three were good friends when they played college ball at Nebraska in the early 1960s, and their families still keep in touch.

McDole, in his 18th season of pro ball, calls Tingelhoff a "real great guy. We used to baby-sit together at the University of Nebraska when our wives went out to play bridge. We fixed the damndest drinks you ever saw, chocolate, bananas, malt and vodka."

"I thought so much of Mick I named my 11-year-old son after him, and he and his wife Phyllis were the godparents of our 15-year-old daughter."

"But Saturday, we have to beat on each other."

However, since he plays defensive end and Tingelhoff, a five-time All-Pro, is the middle of the line, their meetings should not be that frequent.

"We don't play directly against each other," McDole noted. "I'm a defensive end and Mick's a center. Maybe a couple of times a game I might have to fall over him or do something violent like that."

Tingelhoff, too, recalls the college days at Nebraska with the beefy defensive end and the scrappy defensive back.

"The wives used to hassle us when they came home from bridge because we conducted all these experiments with the chocolate, bananas and vodka. We've matured since then, of course."

"My other old buddy on the Redskins is Pat Fischer, the cornerback. Pat and I used to go up to his hometown of Omaha on weekends. We couldn't do it without getting into a fight with somebody. When you live in Nebraska, it's what you do for recreation."

Added Tingelhoff: "We exchange Christmas cards with the McDoles and Fischers, and we keep writing to each other how nice it would be to get together some day. So we're getting together Saturday."

Minnesota rolled up an 11-2-1 regular season record to win the Central Division championship for the fourth straight year while the Redskins earned the wild card berth with a 10-4 slate.

The last time the two teams met was in Washington last year when the Redskins nipped Minnesota 31-30 to stop a 10-game Vikings' victory streak.

The weather is heating up for this meeting, with the latest forecast calling for temperatures Saturday in the low to mid 40s, along with rather windy conditions and partly cloudy skies.

Activity down

Unseasonably warm temperatures have put a crimp in most outdoor activity across the state, according to the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission.

Conservation officers in the field report the following conditions:

SAND HILLS — Ice fishermen were having good success on perch at Merritt Reservoir on the west end earlier in the week. Best baits were teardrop/minnow combinations. Fishermen also were taking some perch and crappie in the Boardman Creek area of the lake. Extreme caution was advised as there was some open water, both along the edges and in the middle of the lake.

PANHANDLE — Duck hunting and trout fishing were reported to be poor in most areas of the panhandle. Goose hunters at Clear Creek Public Hunting Area were reporting good success in the last several days. Since Monday, hunters were taking an average of 14 birds per day.

SOUTHWEST — Officers are reporting an increase in illegal night hunting as the temperature warms up. Ice fishing on the Salt Valley Lake is not recommended as the ice is starting to break up and conditions were reported to be dangerous.

NORTHEAST — Snaggers were having good success on paddlefish to 60 pounds in the tailwaters of Gavins Point Reservoir.

Cage record

Beatrice goal

Beatrice — The Beatrice High School Key Club will host a 60-hour basketball marathon Dec. 27-29 from 8 a.m. Monday until 8 p.m. Wednesday at the City Auditorium.

Ten Beatrice High School Key Club members will attempt to break the world's record for the longest recorded basketball game in history.

According to the Guinness Book of World Records the record is 56 hours and 1 minute.
